LA FOLLETTE SAYS SUGAR TARIFF BLOCK PRICE INQUIRY

Asserts They Have Used
Every Effort to Delay Tariff Commission's Rate Investigation.

CALLS ON CHAIRMAN FOR EXPLANATION

Points Out That Inquiry Began Nearly 18 Months Ago After Disclosure of Senator's Activity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Declaring that he "had reason to believe" that representatives of sugar interests were delaying a report by the Tariff Commission upon an investigation into costs of sugar production, Senator La Follette today called upon the commission for an explanation.

In a formal statement the Wisconsin Senator reviewed the history of the commission's investigation into the sugar tariff, asserting that the sugar interests had been powerful enough to delay action
"through the highest official channels of this Government," and added that "attempts have been made to intimidate and otherwise obstruct" the action of the commission. He directed a letter to the chairman of the commission asking for the complete record of the case.

Refers to Disclosures

The investigation which the commission is making was ordered nearly 18 months ago, Senator La Follette said, "following disclosure that the Republican chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, actually in conjunction with a member of the President's cabinet, had sought to use the tariff making power as a means to compel Cuban sugar growers to reduce their production and thus to increase sugar
prices to the American consumer."

The investigation should have been completed long ago, the Senator said, and "for several weeks
there have been persistent reports that the report of the commission was ready to be made public."

"It is well known that representatives of the sugar interests have been very busy in Washington," Senator La Follette continued, "actively using every influence and device to delay the completion of the investigation."

"It is obvious that if the report is held back until the end of the session, in September, the sugar interests will be in a position to argue that the statistics compiled by the commission are out of date
and valueless, and the public will thus be denied during the current year any measure of relief from present exorbitant import duties on sugar. It is likewise obvious that the sugar interests will exert influence to prevent the reapportionment in September of a member of the commission whose term expires at that time, and who has consistently resisted the pressure of the sugar lobby."

Showing "Monopoly Control."
The American people had seen in recent years, in the sugar interests, he declared, "a striking demonstration of monopoly control, not only of prices, but of their own Government." In 1920, under a Democratic administration, he said,
an "artificial inflation" of sugar
prices increased the rates to the consumer to 30 cents a pound, while in 1922 American banking interests, which "controlled 70 percent of the Cuban sugar proprieties" obtained an opportunity during the consideration of the Fordney tariff bill in Congress to affect the situation as to prices.

The Wisconsin Senator cited a letter written by Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee in January, 1922, to the President, then in Cuba, asking that the President of Cuba be given a proposal by which the American tariff on sugar
would be reduced provided Cuba would limit her production. The Cuban Government followed up by sending a delegation to Washington, which had an audience with Senator Smoot, Secretary Hoover,
Gen. Crowder and C. C. Hamlin, whom La Follette characterized as a lobbyist for American beet sugar interests.

"All of these gentlemen urged the artificial limitation of the Cuban sugar crop," Senator La Follette continued. "In order to decrease the sugar supply imported for consumption by the public in this country. . . . Rumors were

Soviet Will Make Radio Sets At Low Price to Extend Use

Russian Government Also Plans to Interest
Public Through New Broadcasting Stations.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 29.—Soviet Russia will broadcast news, speeches and entertainment programs to the public, and the Council of Commissars is expected to issue a deree permitting the installation of radio receiving sets in the home,
at a moderate license fee.

The Government will not only allow radio users to construct their own receiving sets, but will undertake itself to manufacture amateur apparatus for Russia's millions.
This will require an entirely new industry, and the Government hopes it will stimulate the development of electrical science, and provide work for the State factories
which are now running at reduced capacity.

Engineers, electricians and the general public are invited to submit models of home receiving sets.
These will be examined by a jury of experts, and a prize will be awarded the designer of the one chosen as best adapted to Russian conditions. The Government desires that such a receiving set shall cost not more than $15.

300 Receiving Stations Now.

Up to the present, the Government has confined the broadcasting of official speeches and similar matter to the various provincial soviets, branches of the Rosta

News Service and Communist Party organizations, which embrace more than 300 receiving stations. There are 40 sending stations in Russia, eight of which have a radius of 2000 miles or more each. The Government is completing a powerful receiving station at Loubertzy, the site of the International Harvester Company's plant near Moscow, which will be capable of picking up the signals from Russian stations.

Broadcasting from Russia to the United States will become possible, it is hoped, when the Government has finished the great Khodynka station, on the outskirts of Moscow, now being erected. It will have a capacity of 150 kilowatts,
and an estimated sending radius of 5000 miles. Americans, with sufficiently sensitive receiving apparatus, will then be able to listen to speeches by Trotsky, Zinovief, Rykov and other Bolshevik orators.

Moscow Can Hear U. S.
At present Moscow listens regularly to Arlington, Annapolis and the powerful Long Island station.
The signals from these are extror-dinarily distinct, but the Halifax and other Canadian stations are heard only feebly.

COUNT PICCIO SPENT HER MONEY, WIFE SAYS

Former American Girl Testifies
in Separation Suit She Gave Him $24,700 in Year.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, July 29.—Countess Pic-cio, American wife of Gen. Pierre Roger Piccio, head of the Italian air service, claimed that her husband had benefited to the extent of $21,700 in four years through her generosity when the suit for separation began here today. Attorney Deifrage, representing Countess Piccio, charged that Gen.
Piccio knocked down his wife in a Paris hotel and then departed for Rome, taking with him $50,000 worth of jewelry, including a $25-diamond necklace which the Countess had bought for herself.

The lawyer demanded the return of this jewelry.
In counter action, General Pic-cio charged his wife with extravagance. It was in reply to this accusation that the Countess claimed to have given her husband $21,700 from her own bank account, offering her checkbook and canceled checks to prove her assertions.

The Countess of the Piccios date back more than a year. The Countess who was Miss Lauretta Julia Batchelder, of an old American Southern family before her marriage, met General Piccio in the United States in 1920 when he was on a mission to that country for his Government. At that time he was aerial attaché to the Italian Embassy in Paris. He is an Italian Colonel.

EXTRADITION OF NOWLIN MURDER SUSPECT DENIED

Prisoner Identified by Mis-sourians as Joe Delbono Who Killed Boy in Vernon County.

TWO YEARS' SEARCH COMES TO NAUGHT

Italian Consul and Colony
Interested in Case of Man Who Asserts He Is William Portieri.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 29.—
After four persons had pointed litling in the office of Gov. Small yesterday and positively sworn that he was Joe Delbono, wanted for the murder of Henry M. Nowlin in Vernon County, Mo., Aug. 29, 1922, Judge C. M. Jenkins, Director of Public Welfare, acting in the name of Gov. Small, refused to honor the requisition of Gov. Herde of Missouri, and the man was set free.

Thus was brought to naught a search which has been conducted for almost two years by Claude Nowlin, formerly of St. Louis, general counsel of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., father of the 17-year-old boy who was shot to death by the four Delbono brothers
on the highway near Nevada, Mo.,
after they had "hogged" the road
and forced his automobile off of a culvert and into a ditch.

The man was set at liberty on the testimony of fellow-countrymen
that they knew him as William Portieri and that he had been in Springfield at the time of the commission of the crime and the statements of two witnesses that they knew Joe Delbono and that the accused man was not Delbono.

Trained by Car and License.
The man was arrested last Tuesday at the request of the authorities of Girard, Kan., who gave the information that he would be driving a Westcott touring car with a winter top, license 700116. Sheriff Lemon, leaving the Courthouse
that day, found the Westcott parked in his own car. Department watched it until the Italian came to it. He was arrested. He said he was William Portieri of 1114 East Carpenter street, Springfield. He was dressed in a broadcloth suit, silk shirt and patent leather shoes and he said he was a coal miner.

A revolver was found on him.
His wife, questioned separately,
gave information which conflicted
with his.
Sheriff Lemon says he had received previous information that Delbono was in Springfield and one of his deputies had located Joe and his brother, Sam, also wanted for the Nowlin murder, and was ready to close in on them when the request came for the arrest of the owner of the Westcott car. This deputy came in while Portieri was being questioned and named him
as Delbono.

The authorities of Vernon County, Mo., were notified and requisition papers were obtained and Sheriff Marshall of that county arrested Saturday with two identification witnesses. They were Mill Crawford, Kan. former Sheriff of Crawford County, and W. D.
Barker, former City Marshal of Arma, Kan. They were old, believed to have been kidnaped, and the search for Mrs.

Phoebe Wood, a nurse charged in a police court warrant with kidnaping the child, continued. All the missing woman has relatives and child to her mother, Mrs. Margaret Blanchard.

STUDYING A CANAL ROUTE

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 29.—
The Nicaraguan newspapers are commenting on the arrival here of Takashi Aoki, a Japanese, claiming to be a student, who is said to be studying the Nicaraguan canal route. He is declared to have requested information concerning the canal and obtained considerable data. It has been reported that he is a representative of the Japanese Government.

FORD LENDS TO COSTA RICA

By the Associated Press.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, July 29.—Reports received here from San Jose, Costa Rica, are to the effect that Henry Ford is loaning money without interest to the Costa Rican Government to be used in the construction of an automobile highway which will connect Port Limon, on the Atlantic, and Puntarenas, on the Pacific coast of the Republic.

RECORDS SHOW JULY LIKELY TO BE COOLEST IN 51 YEARS

Last Three Days Depend on Whether Month Will Set
Low Record.

This month may pass into weather records as the coolest July in the 51 years that temperature records have been kept here. It has been cooler than the average June.

The mean temperature, unofficially computed, for the first 28 days of the present month has been 74.5 degrees. The average mean for June, over the half-century period, has been 75.1. The average for July has been 79.3 degrees.

Not since 1917 has there been a June so cool as this July. There has not been a July to compare with it since 1891, when the coolest July of previous records showed a mean of 74.9. Unless the last three days of this month show high temperatures, the monthly mean will be below the 1891 figure, and will establish a new low record. The highest temperature of the month was 93, on the 21st.

Unless heavy rains occur in the remaining three days of a regular month will not be abnormally wet.
The precipitation up to today was 3.19 inches, whereas the normal average for the entire month of July is 3.61 inches.

$530,000 CARRIED BY PLANE IN EXPERIMENTAL MAIL FLIGHT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The first air mail from Nashville, Tenn., arrived at 1 p. m. today, after a flight of 400 miles by Lieuts. Vincent Meloy and Herbery Fox in three hours and 29 minutes.

The experimental flight, which Nashville postal authorities and the U. S. Post Office, were the service, was made in excellent flying weather, without the slightest mishap and in fast time, Lieut. Fox said. The aviators carried $530,000 in banking items, on which time is saved by air mail. The Federal Reserve Bank and the American National Bank of Nashville arranged the experimental flight, in co-operation with Postmaster O'Callaghan of Nashville, and the 10th Observation Squadron, Tennessee National Guard, to which Lieut. Fox is attached. Lieut. Meloy is a regular army aviator. The plane brought 150 pounds of mail.

RABBIS IN GALICIA PUT BAN ON LOW-NECKED DRESSES

By the Associated Press.

LEMBERG, Poland, July 29.—
Thirty Galician rabbis have issued a joint ban against the appearance of Jewish girls and women in sleeveless and low-cut dresses. The ban was proclaimed at a synagogue of Galicia. The rabbis declared in their statement that "this lack of morals in dress is responsible for all the misfortunes that have befallen Jewry."

They declared that the action of the rabbis is a slander on Jewish womanhood.

DAVIS DENIES OWNING NONUNION COAL MINES

By the Associated Press.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 29.
A Sullivan newspaper today prints
a letter received from John W. Dawes, Democratic candidate for President, in which he denies he is interested in nonunion coal mines in West Virginia. Or that he was one of Charles G. Dawes' "Minute men." The letter was sent in reply to a communication from the Sullivan newspaper made at the request of union miners there, and
is as follows:

"I have your letter of the 15th
forwarded to me here and hasten to reply.
"I own no stock whatever in any coal mine, union or nonunion, or
for that matter any coal or coal lands. I was never one of Charles G. Dawes' 'Minute men.' I have never been opposed to labor unions, and thoroughly believe they are necessary to the welfare, not only of the laboring man, but the community as well.
"Believe me, cordially yours,
"JOHN W. DAWES."

PROSECUTION WILL FIGHT TO EXCLUDE ANY INSANITY EVIDENCE IN FRANKS CASE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The prosecution will make a resolute effort to exclude all insanity evidence from the trial of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb for the murder of Robert Frank, State's Attorney Crowe declared today, shortly before the defense was expected to open its case by calling ali-enists to the stand.

If Crowe should be successful in
his attempt, it would virtually de-
molish the plans of the defense,
which apparently are resting their
chief hopes upon the testimony of
the experts on mental disease.

"The law in this matter is so
plain that I don't see how it can
be avoided," the State's attorney
declared to the Post-Dispatch correspondent. "If the men are insane, they are not guilty, and have
no right to plead guilty, and the Judge has no business listening to any of this testimony. If they are
sane, as they admit by their plea
of guilty that they are, then they have no right to put evidence of insanity into the record. The State will strenuously object to the introduction of a line of insanity
testimony, and if it is presented, I
will ask for a jury."

The theory of the defense.
It does not follow, of course,
that the prosecutor's demand will
be granted. Judge Caverly can
rule the insanity testimony proper
and decline to call a jury, if he chooses. The theory of the defense in proposing to call the
alienists is based upon the distinction between a "legal insanity" and
"medical insanity." Chief Justice
Dawson admits that legally the
defendants are sane, in consequence
of their plea of guilty. That, however, does not forestall the introduction of "medical insanity," not
as a defense but as a circumstance
mitigating the crime. Up to that argument he will ask for the admission of the testimony.

Nevertheless, Crowe's statement
made it plain that a lawyer's battle over the question was in prospect.

Day's Testimony.
Testimony this morning consisted
almost entirely in reading the record of the examination of Leopold
and Loeb by Crowe during the
early stages of their detention, at
time when they were denying any
connection with the crime and
when Crowe was distinctly inefficient to believe them.

One of the points brought out in
this connection was Leopold's statement that he was an atheist and
his explanation of this belief. His private theory of the development
of the God idea, he said, was that
the "bliss and magic of primitive
tribes, in order to reinforce
their own authority, told their subjects that disobedience would be followed by supernatural punishments."

Confession Read.
The reading of Leopold's confession by an official stenographer
began at 11:05. The defense objected to no objection. The stenographer, E. M. Allen, stated that Leopold began making the statement at 1:20 o'clock on the morning of May 31.

"Friendly Judge" Testimony.
State's Attorney Crowe told the
correspondent at the noon recess
that he had five witnesses to support Detective Sergeant Gortalski's
story of Leopold's remark about
pleading guilty before a "friendly
judge," but would put them on
the stand only in the event that
the defense introduced testimony

$17,000 TAKEN IN HOLDUP OF ILLINOIS BANK

First National of Highland Robbed by Men Who Escape in Auto With Missouri License Plates.

THREE TAKE PART IN THE ROBBERY

Three Others Waited Outside in Machine Which Headed Roward St. Louis
After Cash Was Obtained

Three robbers took a sum estimated at $17,000 to $20,000 from the First National Bank of Highland, Ill., 33 miles east of St.
Louis, at 1 p. m. today, and escaped
in an automobile in which two or three other men had waited for them outside the bank. They drove toward St. Louis.

The robbers, who entered the bank were armed and were without masks. Earl Malan, assistant cashier, was in charge, and two bookkeepers, Miss Bernice Stocker and Miss Cora Howell, were the only other persons in the place.

The robbers wasted no time in preliminaries, but immediately ordered the three to lie on their faces on the floor. They took the money from the cash drawers, not more than $2000, the assistant cashier believes.

$15,000 From Vault.
The men gathered the money into sacks, and they then 3.000000 that one of the young women get up and open the vault for them.
"They can't know the combination," Malan told the men.

"Then you get up and open it,
or we'll kill you," was the reply.
Malan opened the vault, and the men took the contents, $15,000 or more.

Several Shots Fired.
The three men then ran out and jumped into the machine waiting for them, which headed toward St.
Louis on the National Trail. The handfire fired several shots as they drove away, apparently not aiming at anyone, but intending to discourage pursuit. This was the only shooting in connection with the robbery. The car had Missouri license plates on it.

Leo Ammann, cashier of the bank, was said to be in St. Louis at the time. The money taken by the robbers was insured.

LEOPOLD PLAY ACTOR LIVING A DREAM LIFE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Dr. William

defense" psychiatrist, has reported his views on the condi-

chooses. The theory of the defense in proposing to call the
alienists is based upon the distinction between a "legal insanity" and
"medical insanity." Chief Justice
Dawson admits that legally the
defendants are sane, in consequence
of their plea of guilty. That, however, does not forestall the introduction of "medical insanity," not
as a defense but as a circumstance
mitigating the crime. Up to that
argument he will ask for the admission of the testimony.

Nevertheless, Crowe's statement
made it plain that a lawyer's battle over the question was in prospect.

Day's Testimony.
Testimony this morning consisted
almost entirely in reading the record of the examination of Leopold
and Loeb by Crowe during the
early stages of their detention, at
time when they were denying any
connection with the crime and
when Crowe was distinctly inefficient to believe them.

One of the points brought out in
this connection was Leopold's statement that he was an atheist and
his explanation of this belief. His
private theory of the development
of the God idea, he said, was that
the "bliss and magic of primitive
tribes, in order to reinforce
their own authority, told their subjects that disobedience would be followed by supernatural punishments."

Confession Read.
The reading of Leopold's confession by an official stenographer
began at 11:05. The defense objected to no objection. The stenographer, E. M. Allen, stated that Leopold began making the statement at 1:20 o'clock on the morning of May 31.

"Friendly Judge" Testimony.
State's Attorney Crowe told the
correspondent at the noon recess
that he had five witnesses to sup-
port Detective Sergeant Gortalski's
story of Leopold's remark about
pleading guilty before a "friendly
judge," but would put them on
the stand only in the event that

LEOPOLD PLAY ACTOR LIVING A DREAM LIFE

"Crazy Genius" Said to Thrill

Possible Hanging.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Dr. William Healy of Boston, another "Leopold
defense" psychiatrist, has reported his views on the condition mentally of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, who with Robert Frank, State's Attorney Crowe declared today, shortly before the defense was expected to open its case by calling alienists to the stand.

If Crowe should be successful in
his attempt, it would virtually de-
molish the plans of the defense,
which apparently are resting their
chief hopes upon the testimony of
the experts on mental disease.

"The law in this matter is so
plain that I don't see how it can
be avoided," the State's attorney
declared to the Post-Dispatch correspondent. "If the men are insane, they are not guilty, and have
no right to plead guilty, and the Judge has no business listening to
any of this testimony. If they are
sane, as they admit by their plea
of guilty that they are, then they
have no right to put evidence of
insanity into the record. The State will strenuously object to the
introduction of a line of insanity
testimony, and if it is presented, I
will ask for a jury."

The theory of the defense.
It does not follow, of course,
that the prosecutor's demand will
be granted. Judge Caverly can
rule the insanity testimony proper
and decline to call a jury, if he
chooses. The theory of the defense in proposing to call the
alienists is based upon the distinc-

Bright Boy With Contagious Grin Relieves Grimness of Loeb-Leopold Hearing

Lad Once Picked as Victim So Engaging He Wins Judge and Everybody, Even Two Slayers

Ready in His Testimony; Reporter Says Leopold, Accusing Loeb, Said Inflicting Pain Was Repugnant to Him.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Upon the strange canvas of the Leopold-Leopold trial a vivid splash of color that will linger long in the memories of those who saw it was the appearance upon the witness stand yesterday of little Johnny Levison, originally chosen by the murderer as the victim of the design which, by rough chance, they transferred to Robert Franks.

It was enough to make one wonder if it was not all a dream. In the witness chair sat a ruddy-cheeked youngster of nine years, frank, engaging, good-natured, smiling fearlessly down upon the two youths who had planned to kidnap and murder him, and, stranger still, the youths returning his smile, listening delightedly to his bright answers, and apparent by sharing wholeheartedly in the general admiration which his manner bearing evoked.

Johnny won the hearts of the judge, the lawyers, the reporters and the spectators in less time than it takes to tell it. He is a chunky lad with blue eyes, fair hair and a grin for everybody. He wore a Norfolk suit of blue serge, and his golf stockings revealed knees that were plentifully skinned. Strands of his hair were wrapped down on his forehead with perspiration in true boyish style, and his heels, falling an inch short of the floor, were hooked over a round of the witness chair.

Addresses Himself to the Judge.

At times he leaned forward with his elbows on his knees and spoke earnestly and clearly to the court, looking straight at the judge, and most of his feet. Again he bent over and addressed himself engagingly to Judge Caverly, who put off his judicial face and fairly beamed at him. Once or twice he whispered to his mother, who sat beside him, trying to remember a date, and when it came to him he blurted it out joyfully. The thought that anybody could premeditate deliberate harm to such a youngster made the emotion of any person, it would seem.

Johnny is the son of Sol Levison, a wealthy attorney, and was a classmate of Robert Franks at Harvard School. The important and virtually only point in his testimony was that he saw Loeb in an automobile just inside the school playground the afternoon Robert was kidnapped there. Johnny was playing ball, instead of going home, and that fact, probably saving his life. It was when Robert came out and started home that Loeb enticed him into the car and he was killed about three minutes later. Like Robert, Johnny didn't know Leopold.

Questioning of the Boy.

"Do you know Richard Loeb?" asked Assistant State's Attorney Shabro. "Yes, sir," the boy replied. "Can you point him out now?" Johnny half rose, peered eagerly over the close-packed assembly in the inclosure, then smiled in recognition, and pointed his finger, sighting over it for accuracy. "Yeah," he smiled broadly back at him. "Did he speak to you?" Shabro asked. "He just said 'Hit it out.'" was the ready answer. Johnny evidently having been at bat at the time.

"Did you have any further talk with him?" "No, sir."

"Who was with you at the time he spoke to you?" "Just some boys who went to the school."

"Were any of the teachers there?" "Yes, sir, Mr. George Beane."

Attorney Benjamin Bachrach for the defense questioned the boy directly.

"When did school finish this year?" Johnny puzzled over that an instant and countered: "You mean when did it let out?"

"Yes." "Oh, it let out Friday, June 12."

Bachrach inquired if Johnny's folks had gone away for the summer, and if so, where. He promptly replied: "Kennebunk Beach, State of Maine."

It developed that Johnny had come back to testify, and Bachrach asked him when he left Kennebunk Beach. "At 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning."

"And when do you expect to go back, John?" "At 9:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

Most of his answers were given with a straightforwardness, exactness and brevity which would shame many of the adults who had been on the stand.

As Johnny climbed down, still good-natured, and made his way fearfully out of the courtroom, he passed directly by Loeb and the latter looked up at him with a friendly smile and followed him with his eyes all the way out of the room.

Not a trace of regret that he had once contemplated the abduction and death of this child, not an indication that the enormity of it troubled him, could be seen, for all his expression, he might have been a totally disinterested spectator, sharing the general approval of the boy's fine demeanor.

Young Reporter's Story.

Previously, Wallace Sullivan, a youthful reporter for the Herald and Examiner, had described Leopold's and Loeb's first quarrel after they were arrested, and his own part in provoking it. The incident occurred in the course of the re-enactment of the crime by the prisoners, who were taken in separate automobiles to the various scenes, where they told what they had done and directed detectives in the search for bits of material evidence.

Sullivan rode with Leopold and during one of the stops made by the party he asked Leopold point blank which one of them struck the blows. Leopold declared that Loeb did it. Sullivan went over and told Loeb this, and Loeb denied it, declaring that Leopold handled the fatal chisel. Loeb argued that he must have been in the driver's seat, because it was him that Robert knew, and naturally he saw the emotion of any person, it would seem.

Leopold, when Sullivan told him what Loeb had said, rather excitedly proceeded to demonstrate in the police car just how the murder was committed, and he pointed out that the car was a Willys-Knight, the same make as his own, and that naturally he would be driving.

"Repugnant to My Nature."

At the end he said to Sullivan, according to the reporter's testimony: "Tell Dick that I am surprised and disappointed in him. I am surprised in the first place that he let the State's Attorney dupe him into making a confession. I am surprised that he faltered, and I am surprised that he is trying to lie about the facts now. It is childish to try to shift the blame, for we are equally guilty, no matter who struck the blows. No matter who struck the blows, no matter who struck the blows, no matter who struck the blows."

It turned out later that Leopold was telling the truth. Loeb has since admitted wielding the chisel and has told the defense attorneys that Leopold paid and exclaimed: "My God this is terrible!" and that he had to quit him.

Subsequently, however, Leopold told Sullivan that, "experimentation on animals or human beings is commendable, however painful it may be on the subject, providing it advances the knowledge of the experimenter. As an illustration, he said: "Suppose a child pulls the wings from a fly. It may be very painful to the fly, but it is justified if the child thereby learns that without wings the insect cannot fly."

Freely Admitted the Killings.

Capt. Shoemaker of the Police Department, who also was on the automobile trip, described the actions of the defendants, telling how they freely admitted the killing and assisted in recovering evidence which they had hidden.

The concluding evidence of the afternoon session was the reading by an official stenographer of the examination of Loeb and Leopold by State's Attorney Crowe at the time when they were still denying the crime. The reading was not quite completed. There were parts of the questioning of Leopold in connection with his knowledge of sex perversion, which Crowe desired to have read in closed session.

The testimony brought out some facts about Leopold's erudition. He told Crowe that he had studied 13 languages, aside from English, and could speak five fluently. The five were English, German, French, Spanish and Italian. In addition he said he had studied Hellenic Greek, classic Greek, ancient Latin, popular Latin, Romance Latin, Russian, Hawaiian and Sanskrit, and could read and write all of them except Russian and Sanskrit. Leopold smiled at the recital.

"King and Slave Stuff."

In the specialists' report on the mental history of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, published yesterday, emphasis was laid upon Loeb's weakness for lying, often when there seemed to be no adequate motive for concealing the truth. In view of the report, the following incident is of interest. A reporter visiting the prisoners in the jail yesterday morning before court opened called at Loeb's cell and facetiously greeted him with: "Hello, King; where's your slave?"

"Where do you get that 'King' stuff?" Loeb demanded in apparent bewilderment.

Why, according to the reports of Dr. Bowman and Dr. Hulbert, printed this morning, you are the 'King' and Leopold is your 'slave,' the reporter explained.

"Well, I don't know anything about it," Loeb smiled. "I haven't seen the morning papers yet."

Just then Leopold came in from the barber shop and said to the reporter: "We were just reading that 'King' and 'slave' stuff in the morning papers. Where did they get that—that of a joke book?"

"Oh, you dumbbell!" exclaimed Loeb. "I just finished telling him we hadn't read it." "How did you expect me to know that?" retorted Leopold.

"What a dumbbell!" repeated Loeb, holding up his hands in mock despair.

Both the prisoners read all the papers every day.

On the "Lunatic Fringe."

All celebrated criminal trials attract their "lunatic fringe," and this one has acquired a generous one. A man endeavored to get into the courtroom yesterday to deliver a message to the parents of the defendants. It declared that the writer had evidence that Leopold and Loeb were dragged by enemies and committed the murder while under the influence of drugs and "auto-suggestion." The man was locked up for observation.

Judge Caverly has received scores of communications in regard to the case, and yesterday he received a marvelous document from a patient in the State Insane Asylum, consisting of 56 pages, beautifully printed, entirely by hand, in small type, with artistically drawn borders. It purported to be a revelation of the facts in the case, based upon Biblical texts, and it looked like a labor of 10 years. Yesterday afternoon a man took a position in front of the throng outside of the Criminal Courts Building and began reading in a loud voice from the Book of Revelations texts which he said applied to the trial. He encountered the police, and was removed.

One woman telegraphed urgently to her husband, who was in the city, and advised him to hire a hall. The speaker explained that he was just passing by. "Just keep right on passing," admonished the officer.

The day promised, like yesterday, to be a scorcher. Another record-breaking crowd surged around the doors of the smoke-blackened old building, seeking by subterfuge or stealth to run the long gauntlet that leads to the court room. Loeb and Leopold swung into the room with their accustomed alacrity. It is obvious that they enjoy the trial and find it a welcome break in the monotony of jail.

The first witness was E. M. Allen, an official stenographer, who resumed from yesterday the reading of his shorthand notes on the examination of the prisoners by Crowe during the first stages of their detention, when they were accused of the crime. It was during this examination that Leopold told about his knowledge of sex perversion, obtained by reading medieval writers, and when the stenographer reached that passage he was told to omit it. Crowe asked "But it he the doorkeeper," he told, the bailiff. The doorkeeper was slow in arriving and the late Judge said: "Mr. Sheriff, will you bring him in," with emphasis on the "bring." A policeman appeared and the doorkeeper "bowed him out" for letting persons in after the room was filled, admonishing him that he "might have to take harsh measures with him" if it happened again.

Gin and Neurotic Literature.

It appeared that Crowe had asked Leopold if gin was his favorite alcoholic beverage. Leopold said he used it sometimes, but could not say he preferred it. As to Leopold's knowledge of that Leopold didn't say it. "I have five other people to whom he said the same thing," Crowe asserted. "They will be put on the stand in rebuttal if the defense denies it."

Gondard's testimony on the point Friday aroused the defense, and resulted in the only severe cross-examination which the defense has attempted. In the course of it Darrow charged that the story was a "pure fabrication, intended to intimidate the court."

During the reading of the confession the defendants and Leopold in particular, listened more soberly than usual. Loeb glanced around the room occasionally as if to observe the impression made by the narrative of the murder, but Leopold kept his eyes fixed on the witness.

It was the official reporter who resumed in the afternoon the reading of the transcript of the confession. His voice was so low that only those inside the enclosure could hear.

Sitting across the aisle from the defendants, and not more than three feet distant, facing them, sat Dr. William Krohn, an alienist for the State, who is observing their behavior in the courtroom, and who, if the insanity issue enters, will describe his eyes fixations as to their sanity. He has testified for the State in numerous murder trials in which insanity was the defense. He has pronounced Loeb and Leopold sane.

The account of Leopold's confession ended with the description of a dispute between Leopold and Loeb, in the State's attorney office, over certain points in the statement. Each declared that the other had taped the fatal chisel, and each declared the other had struck the blows.

Loeb to the face that the details were "absurd, outright lies," and Loeb declared that he was "being made a fish of." Leopold retorted that Loeb had let the State's attorney trick him and put him in the alibi they had agreed upon. From the dialogue it was apparent that both were very angry.

The reading of the confession was completed at 1:40 p. m. (St. Louis time), having occupied one hour and five minutes of actual reading time.

Reading of Loeb's Confession.

Assistant State's Attorney Shabro immediately began reading Loeb's confession.

The hearing was slow in filling today for the sixth day of the hearing of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, kidnapers and slayers of young Robert Franks.

It was intensely hot and court visitors faced the prospect of listening to the droning routine reading of preliminary statements and confessions of the two youths by a stenographer with only views of the slayers and members of their families and Jacob Franks, father of Bobby, to provide interesting sidelights.

Women, as usual, predominated in the courtroom and 15 minutes before Judge John R. Caverly ascended the bench virtually every courtroom seat was taken, and from a queue of hundreds persons long led upstairs to the floor below the courtroom, with the would-be visitors trying to cajole or bluff their way in. Very few stood about the entrance, however, as the sun beamed vigorously.

Proceedings Are Opened.

The proceedings started at 10:02 a. m. Attorneys Clarence Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach of the defense and Robert E. Crowe, the State's Attorney, conferred with Judge Caverly when court opened. Samuel Eidlitz, the Franks family lawyer, joined them.

A negro, accused of murder, was brought in and pleaded not guilty. On the way out he brushed shoulders with Leopold and Loeb, who have taken the opposite course.

Elbert Allen, an official stenographer from Crowe's office, resumed reading of the questions and answers that passed between the prosecutor and the defendants just before they broke down the night of Decoration day.

The reading was resumed with Leopold's account of the "one week alibi," which he and Loeb agreed upon to account for their activities on May 21.

As the account reached reference to the forest preserve and the swampy lakes south of the city near where Robert Franks' body was found, the State introduced a large diagram of the region.

Drain Where Body Was Found.

When Crowe and Bachrach, taking turns reading the transcription of Allen's notes, which, it was explained, were "cold," after nearly two months, Crowe read that Leopold had said that he was acquainted with the culvert in which the body of Bobby Franks was found. He said he knew there was a drain there but said he did "not notice it particularly" when at the spot on "birding" trips.

"I should say I passed right over it," said the stenographer's account of the interview.

Bachrach read from the statement Leopold's opinion that anyone unfamiliar with the place could not find it in the dark.

Identification of Glasses.

Leopold described his glasses, and gave as the name of the manufacturer the firm whose records finally revealed Leopold as the owner of the glasses found near Bobby's body and which led to his joint confession of the kidnapping and slaying.

CHICAGO, July 29.

WALLACE SULLIVAN, a newspaper reporter, testifying yesterday at the Loeb-Leopold hearing, said that the newspaper men were not using shorthand and had suggested that it would be a good idea for them to cultivate a memory system.

Leopold was quoted as saying that he had acquired a "mnemonic system" and challenged the reporter to give him 15 consecutive concrete nouns, saying that he could immediately recite them backward and forward.

"He was talking about the alphabet," said the reporter, who followed any one of them.

Sullivan said that Leopold confessed that he knew nothing about integral calculus, trigonometry or other forms of higher mathematics.

"He told me that he knew 15 languages and said he could recite from memory Milton's 'Il Penseroso,'" said Sullivan.

Capt. Shoemaker of the Chicago police also told of conversations in which Leopold had detailed the 15 languages he had studied but he said Nathan claimed fluency only in half a dozen.

neurotic literature, it eventually was decided to read it into the record, and Bachrach did so, bending over the stenographer's table and reading in a voice inaudible six feet away.

An ironic twist occurred when it appeared from the record of the examination that toward the close of his questioning, Crowe, apparently about ready to turn Leopold loose, expressed some concern as to whether he felt he had been well treated during his detention. Leopold replied that he had been given every reasonable consideration and he had no complaint to make.

Leopold described his glasses, and gave as the name of the manufacturer the firm whose records finally revealed Leopold as the owner of the glasses found near Bobby's body and which led to his joint confession of the kidnapping and slaying.

"I was not a bit surprised if the glasses found near the ## body were yours?" the State's attorney asked.

"I would not be surprised," Leopold was quoted in reply.

A few more questions led to the identification of the glasses by Leopold as his.

Bachrach read that Leopold stated he habitually carried his glasses in his left coat pocket, and the statement revealed that during examination by the State's Attorney he twice had run and fallen to illustrate possible movements the day the glasses were lost, but that the falls did not dislodge the glasses from the pocket.

"Wanted to Be Very Grown Up."

Leopold told Crowe that since 1921 he had at times carried a .32-caliber automatic pistol, because "I wanted to be very grown up."

Leopold said that he "drank," as the examination revealed by the stenographic notes proceeded, but "doubted" that gin was his favorite.

He said Loeb was a close friend and that they had a habit of dining together as frequently as three times a week.

Bachrach reached unprintable matter and leaned over the three stenographers to whisper to them something for the record only.

The record showed that Milton Smith, Assistant State's Attorney, had rehearsed Leopold on the "joy ride" part of the alibi. Leopold was quoted as saying that he had consumed a pint of gin and Loeb half as much whiskey on this prearranged trip.

"Loeb couldn't go home to dinner on account of his breath," was Leopold's version of the reason for their absence from home the evening of May 21. He also accounted for the supposed hour of their return by saying Loeb needed time to "sober up."

Leopold's Religious Views.

Leopold's ideas on religion were worked into the record. "There is no God," he was quoted as saying. "I do not believe in a future life. When I die, I die all over. Of course, I am not an opinion, and it can be demonstrated only by dying."

Leopold was busy talking to Darrow when this occurred and apparently did not hear it. Loeb, however, leaned far forward to catch it, then turned to his companion's conference with the attorney.

Darrow was handed a telegram a few moments later. Leopold read it over the attorney's shoulder and whispered to Loeb: "That's all right."

John Shabro, an assistant State's Attorney, took up the reading after Bachrach had read steadily for an hour.

Leopold was quoted as saying that Loeb had a nickname, "Babe," from the family, and "Flea" from the boys at the preparatory school he had attended. He said he probably was called "Flea" because of his size and interest in insects.

Leopold was quoted as denying ever having used narcotics. "Babe" from the family, and "Flea" from the boys at the preparatory school he had attended. He said he probably was called "Flea" because of his size and interest in insects.

For the third time unprintable matter was reached and Shabro dropped his voice too low to be heard even by the newspaper men in the jury box at his immediate left.

Leopold was quoted as saying he and Loeb had had several small disputes, one of them resulting from plans for a New Year's eve party. He said, according to the stenographer's record, that "Loeb's mother did not want her to go out with so small a party, particularly on New Year's eve."

Leopold said he wrote a letter to Loeb and the reader's voice was dropped as it was put into the record. The boys exchanged smiling confidences at this point.

Confession in Read.

Then the record showed Leopold being asked about the pistol in his room and a moment later the reading ended.

Allen was then next asked about a statement he took at 4:30 a. m. Of day after Decoration day, both prisoners and a large staff of Assistant State's attorneys and detectives being present. Allen said that the stenographer who had been taking Loeb's confession was also there.

Allen testified he had transcribed the proceedings that occurred at dawn and Crowe asked if the defense would object if the typed sheets were read, instead of the shorthand notes. He was assured they would not.

"I am not a bit surprised if the glasses found near the body were yours?" the State's attorney asked. "I would not be surprised," Leopold was quoted in reply.

FORMER EMPLOYEE WITNESS AGAINST WILLIAM J. FALLON

Ernest Eiditz, Testifying in Jury Bribing Case, Tells of His Relations With Hearst Editor.

QUOTES LAWYER ON PAYMENT OF JUROR

Denies That After Indictment of Fallon, He Was Promised Life Job With Hearst Organization.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 29.—William J. Fallon, criminal lawyer, on trial in Federal court here, on a charge of jury bribing, succeeded over the strenuous objections of Assistant United States Attorney William E. Quinn yesterday in getting into the record questions that regarded the part played by William R. Hearst and the New York American in the indictment of Fallon.

These questions were asked of Ernest Eiditz, former employee of Fallon, on cross examination by William E. Quinn, counsel for the defense, after the Government had asked the questions.

He denied that he had been paid by Fallon, Joe Baker and Walter O'Neill, he said, he had gone to the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station of the New York Central and taken a train for Montreal.

In Montreal, he said, he registered at the Hotel Windsor as Charles Albrecht. Fallon, he said, visited him three times and gave him $200 each time. He declared, he had come back voluntarily on June 15 and had been in Ludlow street jail ever since. On cross examination Eiditz said Victor Watson was the first one connected with the American to whom he had talked, and he admitted talking to him before he went to United States Attorney Hearst.

"You told him, did you not, that Fallon had the birth certificates of a certain actress in connection with Mr. Hearst?" asked Shanan.

Millard protested, but Shanan declared it was the defense's intention to claim a conspiracy on the part of any number of people to destroy a man and Judge McClintock ruled that Millard had opened the door for the question.

Photostat of Letter Shown.
Eiditz denied making such a statement. He admitted writing a letter to Watson from Miss Bennett's apartment and said Fallon had dictated some of it, but he could not remember what was in it. Shanan then ordered him to write on a piece of paper the name of "Col. Hayward," together with other names and phrases found in the photostat copy such as "Dear Victor," "Fallon indictment." It was then discovered that Eiditz had misspelled Hayward's name, writing it "Haywood," and that the same misspelling occurred in the photostat copy.

Eiditz admitted getting $448 from William M. Chadbourne, at at 67 West Seventy-fifth street, where he said he remained four days.

His Stay in Montreal.
He had frequent conversations with Fallon there, he said, mostly alone, and Fallon, he declared, wanted him to go away. Fallon gave him $2500, he said, and accompanied by Fallon, Joe Baker and Walter O'Neill, he said he had gone to the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station of the New York Central and taken a train for Montreal.

Muriel Astor Weds Russian Prince

Miss Astor recently became engaged to the prince, whose fortune is estimated at $10,000,000 left her by her father, the late John Jacob Astor.

torney for the creditors of E. M. Fuller & Co., but said it was a loan. He denied he was told by Watson that Hayward told Hearst he didn't like the idea of Eiditz being on the American's payroll and that for that reason he would have to get the money from Chadbourne, but could repay it with money the American would pay him after Fallon was indicted. He denied telling anybody after Fallon was indicted that Watson said to him, "Ernest, you have a life job with the Hearst organization."

taken to see Delbono and both immediately recognized him and said: "Hello, Joe," but the man spread his hands and said "Me no Joe."

Immediately following the man's arrest there began a continued amazing activity in his behalf, led by John Picco, Italian consul, and other leaders of the Italian colony. Lawyers were hired and announcement was made that the man would fight extradition.

Sheriff Lemon told Marshall he would need to make a strong showing to get the man. Marshall wired Prosecution Attorney Dan Gibson of Vernon County to come and bring more witnesses. Sheriff Lemon, discussing the strong effort that was being made to prevent the man being taken away, expressed grave doubt whether Missouri would get him.

When the hearing began at 10 a. m. yesterday the Governor's office was filled with the man's friends. Consul Picco was master of ceremonies, assisting in seating the foreigners and afterward acting as interpreter.

Jim Siciliano testified that the accused was William Portieri and that he worked at Jim's grocery from May to September, 1922, and boarded at his house and was never away a day or a night. Delbono has a wife and child. So has Portieri. Jim didn't know where the wife and child of his clerk and boarder were those four months. Mrs. Siciliano and several others gave the same testimony. Joe Termino and James Brown testified that they knew Delbono and that the man was not Delbono.

The appearance of Brown at the hearing was one of the mysteries of the case. He is the brother-in-law of Frank Delbono, who, with

BROTHER'S SLAYER, 80 YEARS OLD, KILLED BY POSSE

Connecticut Farmer, Trained by Dog, Fires on Pursuers Just Before His Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POMFRET, LANDING, Conn., July 29.—Benjamin White, 80 years old, a farmer, who shot and killed his brother, Edwin T. White, 72, and wounded David Marson, last Sunday, was killed at noon yesterday as he resisted a posse in a woods a mile from Edwin's farm. The deaths of the two old men resulted from Benjamin's opposition to the proposed marriage of his brother's daughter, Miss Sadie Phyllis White.

Miss White, who is 35 and a public school teacher of Hartford, was preparing to wed Marson, 45, a widower, next Saturday. Marson, formerly a Hartford policeman, is district superintendent of school buildings.

Miss White and her fiancé motored to her parents' farm Sunday and took her parents and her brother, Howard, for a ride. Her uncle secluded himself in a barn. In the afternoon, Howard White, son of Edwin, went to persuade his uncle to come in the house. The old man fired a shotgun at his nephew. Howard escaped injury. Edwin White then went to the barn and his brother shot him in the breast, killing him.

Marson, going to the fallen man, was shot and wounded slightly. Then Benjamin White walked away. A posse started after him, and yesterday a police dog led the searchers to White in a clump of bushes. White fired. The members of the posse fired into the bushes, killing White.

Carl Delbono, have been convicted of complicity in the killing. Brown was tried and acquitted. His home is at Arma, Kan. He gave his address as Chicago.

Identification by Missourians.
For the State of Missouri, the witnesses were Gould and Barker, Mrs. Lee Ramsey, R. W. Carr and Sheriff Marshall. Gould, Barker, Mrs. Ramsey and Carr, when asked if Joe Delbono was in the room, turned toward him, as he sat a few feet away, and looked him in the eye, pointing out his face and said, "That is Joe Delbono."

Gould was well acquainted with Delbono from having had him as a prisoner for a month for bootlegging. Barker had known Jim Delbono and the entire Delbono family four or five years. Mrs. Ramsey had lived across the street from Joe Delbono and had seen him daily. Carr runs a restaurant and Joe Delbono boarded with him for a while and afterward was a frequent customer and was in his restaurant the night of the murder. The Sheriff did not give identification testimony.

When Gould pointed a long finger at the man and fixed steady blue eyes on him, the man did not manifest surprise or indignation. He met Gould's eyes without flinching. When Barker repeated it, he shifted his position. When Carr named him he sneered and said: "You might be mistaken."

Judge Jenkins commented on the rights of an accused person and took time until 1:30 to think it over. At that hour he said he had spent some time in thought. The law was that when there was a question of jurisdiction of the demanding state at the time the crime was committed, the demanding state was required to make strict proof. On the one hand, there had been positive evidence of countrymen of the accused that he was in Springfield at the time.

BOY, 12, KILLED IN COLLISION OF FIRE APPARATUS

Knocked to Sidewalk When Salvage Corps Truck and Heavier Engine Are Cata-pulted Against Him.

Clanging of fire engine gongs caused 12-year-old William Hewett to pause a moment as he was on his way to a corner drug store near his home at 3323 Marine avenue, yesterday afternoon. The sounds came from divergent directions and proved to be fatally confusing.

For, an instant later, a salvage corps truck, racing customarily to reach the scene of a fire, struck at right angles, a slower moving and heavier engine truck, catapulting the mass across the curb and knocking over, conscious and asked a neighbor, all suffering minor injuries—while the boy was knocked to the sidewalk and suffered injuries from which he died a few hours later at City Hospital.

The alarm, which was for a fire of insignificant proportions at the Marine Hospital, at 3640 Marine avenue, was turned in at about 4:30 p. m. Answering it, a truck of the salvage corps station at 2310 Sidney street was coming south on the west side of Jefferson avenue. A truck of Engine Co. 35, at Grand and Potomac street, was coming east on the east side of Miami street. The collision was at the southwest corner at Miami street and Jefferson avenue.

The injured boy, the son of William Hewett, a newspaper printer, was conscious and asked a neighbor boy to complete his errand. He was removed to the City Hospital and died at 10:10 p. m. of a fractured skull.

"The injured members of the salvage corps truck, Lieut. Charles Price and Fireman George Hyland and Hugh Harris, were treated at City Hospital for cuts and bruises. Joseph Ollinger and Charles Cunningham of the engine company were treated at the Alexian Brothers Hospital for injuries to the head.

Investigation of the accident by police developed that a lumber company truck was parked a few feet from the intersection and was struck, though the driver, seated at the wheel and about to start, was uninjured.

There had been some proof of identity, but only one witness had testified that the man was in Missouri the night of the murder. It was therefore the conclusion of "the executive" that the strict proof required by the law and the decision had not been made and the requisition would be denied.

Jenkins said afterward he had not submitted the case to Gov. Small, but had acted on his own authority.

The man could have been held on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon, but that was such a small matter that the Sheriff said he would not bother about it. So he was released. As to his revolver, that had not been returned to him. He would have to call for it. Would it be returned to him? The Sheriff hesitated and then said he supposed not.

MRS. FLEISCHMANN GETS PARIS DIVORCE FOR ABANDONMENT

Decree Follows Separation of More Than Year; $5,000,000 Settlement Reported.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, July 29.—A divorce on grounds of abandonment today was granted to Mrs. Laura G. Hyland Hemingway Fleischmann, wife of Julius Fleischmann, former Mayor of Cincinnati.

A fortnight ago Fleischmann, America's "yeast king," admitted that his wife was suing for divorce in the Paris courts. While the terms of the decree, which he said at that time had been granted, were not made known, it is understood that they included the settlement of $5,000,000 on Mrs. Fleischmann.

Dudley Field Malone, counsel for Fleischmann, said that he had been separated from his wife for over a year, that they parted from each other with the friendliest feeling toward each other and only cause for divorce was incompatibility. He said that the financial settlement was made long before the couple discovered that incompatibility would disturb their happiness and that it was sufficient to make Mrs. Fleischmann an independently wealthy woman.

The Fleischmanns were married in 1910. Both had been married previously and divorced. At the time of his divorce from his first wife, Fleischmann settled $2,000,000 upon her and a yearly income of $25,000. Mrs. Fleischmann's former husband was Louis Hemingway, a wealthy silk manufacturer.

BANK SWINDLED OUT OF $512 THROUGH NEW RUSE
Both Certified Check and Note to Cashier of Institution at Ed-wardsville Forged.

A new ruse was worked by a swindler to defraud the Bank of Edwardsville of $512 Saturday by a double forgery of the signature of P. F. Weber, an Edwardsville furniture merchant. Frank Sanders, cashier of the bank, and an Edwardsville detective told the St. Louis police about it today.

The swindler, who was accompanied by a woman and a negro boy in an automobile, appeared at Weber's store in the guise of an investigator of a mercantile agency. He made up a "report" on the condition of the business which he praised, and had Weber sign it. A short time later the negro boy appeared at the bank with a certified check for $512, purporting to be drawn on a Chicago bank by "Herman Wieholdt" in favor of Weber, and bearing Weber's purported indorsement.

An accompanying note, with Weber's purported signature, asked for $10 and $20 bills in exchange for the check. Weber is a customer of the bank. The check was cashed and the boy was seen to run to Weber's store. Cashier Sanders informed the clerk to Weber yesterday. The merchant was surprised. He declared the check and note to be forgeries. Apparently the swindler did some quick work in tracing Weber's signature from the "mercantile report." Some one noted the license number on the swindler's car, but the plates were stolen, police records show.

Advised to Support Dry State.
The St. Louis Women's Committee on Law Enforcement, which is bending its efforts to the enforcement of the prohibition laws, met yesterday at Scruggs Auditorium to hear a candidate for nomination for public office at the August primary. The 40 women who attended were advised by officers of the committee to support the candidate endorsed by the Missouri Antislavery League. Mrs. Charles M. Hay, chairman of the meeting, explained that it was not an official indorsement, but that the league's slate coincided with the view of the officers of the committee.

STATE TO TRY CASES AGAINST GLENN YOUNG

Motion of U. S. Attorney at East St. Louis Upheld by Federal Judge Lindley.

A motion of United States District Attorney Potter of East St. Louis, to remand to the State courts 23 charges against St. Glenn Young, Illinois klan raider, and three others, was sustained today in an opinion announced by Federal Judge Lindley of Danville, Va.

The cases grew out of Young's raiding activities in Williamson County, and Young's attorneys sought to have the cases tried in the Federal courts, upon the contention that he was a Federal officer. On this point, the Court, in sustaining the motion, stated:

"The motion filed by the District Attorney, giving the reasons why the Federal Courts should not have the authority to try the cases, states that the defendants were not Federal officers, acting under the revenue laws of the United States; that even if they had been acting as deputies, the deputations were not sufficient to make them bona fide officers; that even if they were Federal authorities, they exceeded their powers as such and at the time the alleged crimes were committed they were not acting in the capacity of Federal officers."

The warrants charge assault and larceny and are directed against Young, Harry Walker, Carl Nelson and Caesar Cagle. Nelson, presumably Carl Nelson, is head of the Herrin klan. Cagle is the Constable who, friendly to the klan, conducted raids, was called out at night and murdered on the streets of Herrin, precipitating a riot which resulted in the second calling of the militia to Williamson County.

taking the boy's body from the automobile and pushing it face downward into the railroad culvert.

Loeb, it was shown, remarked at the end of Leopold's confession that Leopold wrapped the chisel. He also disputed Leopold's recollection that the first idea of the crime was conceived in November, 1932.

"Who hit Franks with the chisel?" Crowe, it was indicated, asked Loeb. "He did," was the reply as read from the stenographers' record.

"I tried to help you out, which is more than you would have done for me," Loeb was quoted as saying to Leopold, "because I thought if the worst came to the worst you would admit what you had done."

Loeb objected, saying to Loeb, according to the record: "You are trying to get out of it yourself, and he classed all Loeb's objections as lies."

Loeb was quoted as having said that the kidnapping and slaying was planned by Leopold, who had promised it would result in "a great deal of excitement and money."

Loeb Doses During Reading.
"I purchased the chicken and hope myself," Loeb was quoted as saying, adding that Leopold alone had purchased acid for disfiguring the face of their victim. Loeb said that Leopold wrote the ransom demand letter but the note was composed jointly. All the letters and telephone calls to the Franks home had been drafted roughly several days ahead of time, Loeb was quoted.

Loeb, who listened intently

while his own confession was being read, dozed in the drowsy heat of the courtroom when Loeb's statement was being read.

Loeb was quoted as saying that Leopold drove down a street opposite the school playground, watching for a victim, and explained the escape of Johnny Lewis, who testified yesterday, saying that Johnny, who had been marked as a possible victim, went down an alley with some other boys.

TRANSFER OFFER BY U. R. REJECTED BY BUS COMPANY

Plan "Impossible" Because It Would Destroy Profit, Declares Head of Controlling Concern.

The bus company considers as "economically impossible" a transfer reciprocity with the street car lines, such as suggested to the Board of Public Service yesterday by General Manager Perkins of the United Railways.

John A. Ritchie, president of the Omnibus Co. of America, which controls the busses here, said the plan could not be given serious consideration because it would destroy the profit now made by the busses. His statement apparently assures the formation of a competing bus company, which Perkins said would be formed by the United Railways Reorganization Committee in the event that the transfer plan was refused.

Permitment of the Board of Public Service will be sought to establish bus lines in outlying points, Perkins said, upon learning the bus company's stand. These busses will be owned by the men who are seeking to reorganize the United Railways and will permit transfers. "The margin of profit on busses is less than 1 cent to the passenger in Chicago and I doubt if it is 1/2 cent here," Ritchie said. "We are satisfied with a small profit, but if street car transfers are added, we would have to operate at a loss. The plan outlined by Perkins is not practical in any city where bus and street car lines compete. This company will never agree to such a plan."

The Board of Public Service has taken under advisement the applications of the bus company for 50 additional miles of permits. Perkins made his suggestion relating to transfers while opposing further grants to the busses except where they supplemented and did not compete with street car lines.

Mosquitoes wrecked the sleep of 10,942,601 people last year

MOSQUITOES need not bother you—if a can of Flit is handy to spray them. Flit spray clears the house in a few minutes of mosquitoes and disease-bearing flies. It is clean, easy to use and harmless.

Destroys All Insects
Flit spray destroys bedbugs, roaches, their eggs and larvae. Spraying Flit on garments kills moths. It destroys the eggs and the tiny worms called larvae which eat holes. Exhaustive tests showed that Flit did not stain or injure the most delicate fabrics. Flit is sold to fur storage plants, etc., in bulk quantities.

Windows, bath tubs and tile will glisten if sprayed with Flit and polished with a dry cloth.

A Scientific General Insecticide
More than seventy formulas were tested before the final selection was made. Flit is a 100% effective insecticide containing no inactive (inert) ingredients.

Try Flit in your home. At all drug stores

DENY KNOWING OF INDORSEMENT
BY KU KLUX KLAN

Five More Candidates, Whose Names Appear on Slate of Order, Heard
From by the Post-Dispatch.

TWO REPUBLICANS, THREE DEMOCRATS

None So Far Admits Being Approached by Ku Klux Representatives or Belonging to Organization.

Five more candidates for nominations for state offices subject to the primary Aug. 5, three Republicans and two Democrats, have told the Post-Dispatch that they know nothing of any indorsement
of their candidacies by the Ku Klux Klan. Two Republicans and three Democrats previously had entered their disclaimers.

This followed publication by the Post-Dispatch last Wednesday, of the fact that klansmen in Kansas City and rural Jackson County are distributing a pink sample ballot bearing the Klan indorsement for six Republicans and as many Democrats for nominations for state offices and for others for local offices. Names of the candidates indorsed were not printed until they were given opportunity to comment upon the indorsement. One Democrat and one Republican have failed so far to reply to a request for such comment.

Replies So Far Received.
Dr. Arthur W. Nelson of Bun-ceon, Democrat, and Sam A. Baker of Jefferson City, Republican, for Governor; State Senator Phil A. A.
Bennett of Buffalo, Republican, for Lieutenant-Governor; State Senator
A. L. McCawley of Carthage, Democrat, for Attorney-General, and Mrs. Kate S. Morrow of War-sburg, Democrat, for Secretary of State, each denied any knowledge of the Klan indorsement, their viewpoints having been stated in the original article.

Replies subsequently received from candidates indorsed are as follows:
Robert L. Haines of Slater, Democrat, for Lieutenant-Governor: I have no knowledge of a Klan indorsement of my candidacy. I am not a member of the Klan.
L. D. Thompson, Republican, for State Auditor: "No member of the Klan has approached me. I have not approached any member of the Klan or any other organization regarding indorsement of my candidacy and I know nothing of any such indorsement."

Statements Much the Same.
John H. Stone, Democrat, for State Treasurer: "I have no knowledge of any indorsement whatever of my candidacy by the Klan."
Gus O. Nations, Republican, for Attorney-General: "I know, nothing of Klan approval of my candidacy. I am not a Klansman, having been invited to join, but having refused, as a Klan publication recently stated. I have not asked for a Klan indorsement."
Frank E. Atwood, Republican,
for Supreme Judge, Division No.
1: "I am not a member of the Klan, have not sought its indorsement and do not know what action,
if any, it has taken with respect to candidates."

SPEED WAGON

Thousands of men—representing hundreds of different businesses—
were skeptical about the Mighty Speed Wagon's fitness to their particular motor haulage needs. Today, these men—supplemented by other thousands—represent ownership of more than 100,000 Speed Wagons, which is actually world leadership in commercial motor vehicles. Q A good business reason—quicker and cheaper haulage definitely proved—keeps them loyal to Speed Wagon.

COMMISSION DISCUSSES MOVIES

International Catalogue of Scientific Films and World Congress on the Art.

ated from
AUG. 29.—The rela-
of motion picture to intellectual life was a subject of discussion

at the concluding session here of the League of Nations Intellectual Co-Operation Commission.
The commission decided that the publication of an international catalogue
of scientific films, and also favored the convening of an international motion picture congress to study
the scientific, artistic and educational interests involved in the development of the art. It further advocated an international exhibition of scientific and educational photography, both fixed and moving.

The commission also resolved

to gather documents on the educational organization of different countries, and with the object of encouraging the exchange of professors and students, decided to form a special committee to stimulate the work of the bodies arranging for such exchanges. This committee is composed of Dr. H. A.
Lorens of Holland, president;
Prof. Henri Bergson of France,
Prof. Gilbert Murray of England,
Dr. Inazo Nitobe of Japan, and Dr.
Vernon C. Kellogg, secretary of the National Research Council of the United States.

The commission received a letter from Senator Ciraio stating that the Italian Red Cross had placed at its disposal 100,000 lire for the relief of Russian intellectuals.

Narcotics Found on Man.
When a man alighted from a taxicab at Fourteenth and Olive streets at 3 a. m. today and started to run west upon seeing detectives
nearby, the officers pursued and arrested him. In his possession they found 42 narcotic tablets, hypodermic needles and syringe and a tube

of liquid which will be examined
later. The man described himself as Dempsey D. Monbeck, 32 years old, of Dayton, O. He had just arrived in St. Louis, he said, and had an appointment to meet a narcotic peddler at the corner.

WHY DOLLAR CLEANING IS PRACTICAL

Many of our patrons have asked us how our method of cleaning women's plain wool garments for a dollar—and men's garments even cheaper—can be practical. Probably a great many others are wondering the same thing. When we first started in business last Fall we weren't sure that we knew the answer ourselves, because we didn't know if our plan would prove practical. But that it has been successful is proven by the fact that we are the fastest growing clothing concern in St. Louis.

We know now that the answer to the question is—VOLUME. Only a large volume of business makes our prices possible.

If you haven't tried our cleaning service, we would like to prove that only prices suffer here—never the quality of work.

ECONOMISTS GIVE THEIR VIEWS IN MILLMEN'S SUIT

Dr. M. W. Watkins Says Bylaws Reveal Restraint of Competition as an Object of Association.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Article six of the bylaws of the St. Louis Millmen's Association clearly reveals that the purpose of the association was for the restraint of competition. Dr. Myron W. Watkins, formerly of the Missouri University Economics Department, now with the National Industrial Conference Board, testified here today at the special hearing before Special Commissioner Dorsey W. Shackelford in the antitrust suit now pending in the Missouri Supreme Court which was brought against the organization in 1921 by Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett. Dr. Watkins, who is one of the expert economic witnesses for the prosecution, explained that he had reached this conclusion when it seemed to him that the one-half of one per cent collected by the association from members through its listing bureau, which gathers data from architects' plans and specifications, was nothing more than a sales tax. This, together with the two per cent collected from the successful bidder, would enable the association to build up a fund which was the joint property of the members, he said. He also declared that it seemed a strange coincidence that should the successful bidder lose money on a contract that this loss had to be greater than two per cent before the association would indemnify the loser. He indicated that he believed the association might waive its claim on the two per cent fee in case the successful bidder lost money on a contract the estimate for which had been calculated on figures submitted by the listing bureau.

Another Practice Criticized.
Dr. Watkins also asserted that the practice which enabled one member to learn whether or not he had been underbid by another was not in consonance with free and open competition although it was less reprehensible than the practice of making known the amount of every bid.

When Charles A. Houts, the attorney for the millmen, explained that the secretary of the listing bureau was permitted to give only a yes or no answer when a bidder related the conversation between a consumer, who claimed a lower bid had been made, and a millman, Dr. Watkins said this was worse than if the secretary gave only a yes or no answer as to whether one bid was lower than another as it might enable the millmen to ascertain the exact amount of the lowest bid.

When asked if the bureau would not eliminate waste and reduce expenses, Dr. Watkins replied: "The bureau, to me, operated in a way to be subject to suspicion, and I should say there would be no tendency to pass the savings on to the public."

View of Weekly Meetings.
Regarding the association's weekly meetings at which J. P. Larson, the secretary-manager, lectured, Dr. Watkins said these would tend to bring about a harmony of action, and therefore to the restriction of competition. As to the 15-page booklet, compiled by the secretary and sent to the members, he said this would have a tendency to bring about a uniformity in the amounts of bids.

At the conclusion of the testimony of Dr. Watkins, Barrett announced that the State's case against the association was virtually completed. Shackelford announced that the next session would be held at 10 a. m., Aug. 9, in the Attorney-General's office, in Jefferson City. Barrett explained that the only other evidence of importance he would present for the State was the corporation franchise tax returns to show the extent of the association's business.

Testifying yesterday for the State of Missouri before Special Commissioner Shackelford. Dr. Lewis H. Haney, director of the New York University Bureau of Industrial Research and author of books on economics, said the St. Louis planing mill men, in their listing bureau, their weekly private meetings and their cost guide tended to limit the scope of free competition and diminish its intensity.

Even if this were not the intent of the millmen, Dr. Haney testified, these devices were admirably adapted for such purposes, and, he added, when the individual member of an association delegates work that should be done by him to a group, such as having someone make his estimates, as does the St. Louis Millmen's Listing Bureau, he surrenders his rights as an independent competitive business man.

Barrett at the Hearing.
Attorney-General Barrett was at the hearing in person, assisted by Henry W. Davis. The millmen were represented by Charles A. Barrett on Next Page.

TRUCK HITS COASTER, TWO CHILDREN HURT

Several Other Persons Seriously Injured in Traffic Accidents Throughout City.

June Powers, 8 years old, of 4316A North Broadway, suffered fracture of the skull, and Harry Lemmon Jr., 9, of 4318 North Broadway, serious lacerations and bruises, when a coaster wagon in which they were riding across the intersection of Eleventh and Far-rar streets was demolished by a delivery truck yesterday afternoon. Harry's brother, Arthur, 14, was drawing the wagon, but jumped aside and was unhurt. The truck driver, Nathan Ashner, of 1808 Elliott avenue, was arrested.

Miss Edna Ballard, 20, of 2104 North Ninth street, was hit by an automobile at Thirteenth and Clinton streets yesterday. The machine drove 40 feet before the driver got out and came back to introduce himself as "John Bunting," and berate Miss Ballard, before witnesses, for being careless in getting in his way. Arrested, he said he was William Patton, 24, 1741 North Thirteenth street. He was charged with peace disturbance, careless driving and driving without city of State license. The auto is held for investigation because its motor number had been effaced.

Two children were seriously hurt at 6 p. m. yesterday when a north-bound Taylor street car collided with a rented automobile on Kings-highway near Manchester avenue. William Corrigan, 16 months old, 1407 California avenue, suffered probable skull fracture, and Leon Garten, 12, 1506 California avenue, serious lacerations. Raymond McKinney, 1414 South Ewing avenue, the driver, suffered lacerations of the head, and Mrs. Ollie McKinney of Charlotte, N. C., was cut and bruised. The motorman said McKinney tried to turn in front of his car.

Others injured in auto accidents yesterday are: Albert Brown, 6, 4498 Forest Park boulevard; John Matala, 4, 519A Morgan street; Fred Gruen, 6, 1014A North Twentieth street; August Helmsberger, 38, 4897 Forest Park boulevard, and Joseph Leone, 21, 1329 North Nineteenth street. Leone, who was thrown from a truck in a collision, is in serious condition.

Government Considering Means of Stopping Shipments to U. S.

LONDON, July 29.—The possibility of taking measures to put a stop to sending from the United Kingdom liquor which ultimately reaches the United States, was still under consideration, Arthur Ponsonby, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told a questioner in the House of Commons today. The difficulty was, he said, to frame measures that would not hurt legitimate trade.

ECONOMISTS GIVE THEIR VIEWS IN MILLMEN'S CASE

Houts and J. P. Larson, both of St. Louis, the latter being manager of the St. Louis Lumber Bureau.

Houts made the statement that the listing bureau had reduced the cost to millmen of taking items off plans, and he asked, on cross-examination, if this did not show work well done.

"I think the work is too well done," Dr. Haney testified. "It is part of the millman's job to make his own estimates. When the individual delegates this work to a group, he surrenders his rights as an independent competitive business man."

"I admit the listing bureau may reduce expense and errors," Dr. Haney said in reply to another question, "but I don't want to say I consider the work entirely desirable in a general economic sense. The reduction of expense is good for the millmen, but there is no certainty that this will be passed on to the public. This system also seems to protect the inefficient who, under free competition, would fail."

Contentions of Millmen.
The millmen in previous hearings have laid considerable stress on testimony for them tending to show that the listing bureau brought more bids. Dr. Haney, when asked by Houts if it were not true that the millmen would bid more often by reason of having access to the bureau's list, said he believed this would have no material effect, for, as he understood the matter, millmen were not supposed to bid unless they had been solicited to do so.

LONDON PARLEY TRYING TO WELD OPPOSING PLANS

Till Tomorrow Taken to Permit Delegates to Discuss Suggestions Made Yesterday.

GERMANS WILL BE ASKED TO ATTEND

Under Occupation, While Not on Agenda, Is Most Difficult Point Meeting Has to Consider.

LONDON, July 29.—The international conference dragged wearily along today with little progress obtainable toward the goal of its mission—the launching of the peace report. That objective became more obscure on some days than others in the maze of discussions through which diplomacy aims to accomplish its ends and today was one of the murky sort.

There were no formal committee meetings arranged for today. In the informal discussions among delegates, financiers and experts the French took the lead in an effort to co-ordinate the various formulae proposed to reconcile the financial idea of security for investors in the proposed German loan with the reluctance of France to waive her right to separate action should Germany default.

With the proposals of Premier Theunis of Belgium and Col. James A. Logan, the American official observer, before them as known factors, the conference is eager to resume the promised new formula of the French and to co-ordinate all new into something tangible for consideration when the full committee meets again tomorrow.

It is admitted on all sides that the troublesome question of the military evacuation of the Ruhr is outside the purview of the present conference which has limited its agenda to the strictly economic question of launching the loan report, nevertheless the problem of withdrawing the military forces from the Ruhr has become the Banquo's ghost which returns to quail this diplomatic feast.

It is difficult to see how the Germans will be shortly called into the conference discussions. It is felt that the question of military evacuation cannot be regarded altogether until the next session.

The Ruhr Evacuation.
The question, indeed, already is one of the topics most earnestly discussed wherever members of the conference gather, and the letters addressed to have been exchanged on the subject between Premier MacDonald and Herriot give added interest to these conversations.

The British delegates express the belief that the Germans will ask for a definite date for the military evacuation. The conference discussion of the subject, however, is informal, as the English and American observers point out that the subject brings into prominence the always formidable figure of Premier Herriot's political opponent, Poincare.

It is realized, on one American side, that the French position is in a rather uncomfortable position regarding the pledges he made before leaving Paris, the obligation of which might imperil the conference and their non-observance seem to mean the handing back of the premiership to Poincare.

The English and American view it to be generally that the military occupation of the Ruhr loses its importance once the economic question of Germany has been resolved. But it is realized that M. Herriot must be very cautious in committing any such doctrine in the presence of the Poincare element.

Col. Logan Presents His Suggestion

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, July 29.—The international conference did not make as much headway yesterday as was expected. The plenary session in the afternoon adopted the report of the subcommittee on the German loan, but the decision was reversed when the French delegation decided that a full summary had already been printed. An amusing passage at arms between Premier MacDonald and M. Titulesco, of the Rumanian mission, followed, the latter insisting that the German allies have not been invited to have a voice in the all-important problem of inviting Germany to London. MacDonald replied that this was a small matter capable of settlement in a few minutes when the allies are in agreement. Titulesco, amid loud laughter, asked if the slightest agreement existed if the allies reaching an agreement, but MacDonald turned the laugh by remarking that the allies could not reach an agreement on the disputed points, they will be referred to Rumania for arbitration.

AUTHOR OF FORMULA TO AID DAWES PLAN

COL. JOHN A. LOGAN.

The most important event of the day was the cool welcome accorded in the subcommittee to the formula brought forth informally by Col. Logan, the American observer, to settle the deadlock over the loan to Germany. Warmly supported by Premier Theunis of Belgium, Col. Logan's suggestions did not find acceptance from either the French or the British, and at length the subcommittee adjourned until Wednesday on the request of the French to enable them to bring forward a new compromise measure.

Meanwhile, an important conference of international bankers, including the French, and probably under the chairmanship of Thomas W. Lamont of Morgan & Co., will meet informally today.

To take the day's proceedings in order, Premier Herriot arose at 6 a. m. and wrote a letter to Premier MacDonald defining the French attitude toward the invitation to Germany to come here, and toward the military evacuation of the Ruhr.

He took the letter to Downing street where he breakfasted.

Col. Logan's Suggestion.
When Subcommittee No. 1 met, Premier Theunis pressed his compromise providing that the French will not take separate action against Germany in case of default without consulting the Dawes experts. The French agreed to accept this provided the British and Americans would promise to accept as final the findings of the Reparations Committee following the consultation of experts which the British refused declaring the views of the experts must be binding.

Here Col. Logan expected to end the deadlock. Pointing out the vital importance in the United States of getting the Dawes report into operation, and detailing the steps already taken by the United States to that end, he declared only one practicable way out seemed to be open, and said that in this view the American bankers concurred.

"The decision is proceeding here in a vacuum," said Col. Logan. "Neither the lenders nor the borrowers, nor the authority, which will provide the security, namely, the reparations commission, are present."

Logan's compromise solution, which he then developed finally, was to ask the German bankers and the reparations commission to appoint delegates to confer on the loan questions.

Premier Theunis at once arose and hailed this American contribution as combining American logic with American common sense, and American business ability. But the British and the French asked time to consider. Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden proffered strong objections to Logan's scheme. It would add, he declared, political power to the great powers already possessed by the reparations commission. Theunis continued to plead for the Logan formula, stating that unlike to other suggestions it was something behind it because if it is adopted the bankers will guarantee the loan. But adjournment followed the French request for time to bring in a new proposal.

The Plenary Session.
The plenary session in the afternoon, after adopting the Jurists' report, decided not to publish the report, but this decision was reversed when the French delegation decided that a full summary had already been printed. An amusing passage at arms between Premier MacDonald and M. Titulesco, of the Rumanian mission, followed, the latter insisting that the German allies have not been invited to have a voice in the all-important problem of inviting Germany to London. MacDonald replied that this was a small matter capable of settlement in a few minutes when the allies are in agreement. Titulesco, amid loud laughter, asked if the slightest agreement existed if the allies reaching an agreement, but MacDonald turned the laugh by remarking that the allies could not reach an agreement on the disputed points, they will be referred to Rumania for arbitration.

U. S. GLOBE FLYERS TO HOP OFF AT 5 A. M. TOMORROW

Kirkwall Flight Is First Leg of Last 7000 Miles of Their Journey Around the World.

GREENLAND ICE CONDITION SEVERE

Captain of Exploration Ship Sends Radio; Destroyer Fleet to Leave Halifax Wednesday Night.

By the Associated Press.
BROUGH, England, July 29.—The American round-the-world aviators will take off for Kirkwall at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning, according to present arrangements.

This early departure on the first stretch of the final leg of more than 7000 miles yet to be covered by the air men was made possible by completion of the arrangements for controlling the route and the tests made yesterday of the airplanes. The machines had their first flight since the pontoons have been attached, and their performance proved quite satisfactory.

The machines were put through their final tuning up and tests today.

Greenland Ice Conditions Severe.
Ship Captain Reports.

COPENHAGEN, July 29.—Ice conditions in East Greenland are severe, says a radio dispatch from the Scoresby Sound Expedition ship Greenland, the Captain of which is the explorer Einar Mendenhall. The stern and steering gear of the ship are reported to have been crushed in the ice at the entrance to Scoresby Sound. A relief ship will be sent to aid the Greenland.

Destroyer Fleet Ordered to Sail From Halifax Wednesday.
By the Associated Press.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. BARRY, HALIFAX, N. S., July 29.—Fog coming in from the North report good weather but cold off Newfoundland, with some ice in the Straits of Belle Isle.

This information was of much interest to the officers and crews of the American torpedo boat destroyers who are looking forward expectantly to their trip to Labrador to meet the American aviators in their flight from Scotland to Indian Harbor.

Preparations for sailing are under way. The orders are for the flotilla to leave port Wednesday evening. This will bring the division into Belle Isle straits for a daylight run on Thursday.

The chief incident in the squadron yesterday surrounded the rescue of two children by men of the flagship Lawrence. Winifred Woods, 12 years old, fell off a dock. He was seen to fall by Rudolph Lens, a torpedo man, who was returning to his launch with the destroyers. He jumped in and made the rescue. Soon afterward a little girl fell into the water and was saved by Francis J. Southard, a signal man.

Maj. Zanni Leaves Rome on Corfu Flight.
By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 29.—Maj. Zanni, the Argentine aviator, and his companion, Cheneville, hopped off this morning from Centocelle Airfield in continuation of their attempted world flight. They are following the route of the British flyer, McLaren, who flew from here to Corfu and thence to Greece.

ed points, they will be referred to Rumania for arbitration. There was more merriment when the incomprehensible technical report of subcommittee three was presented, concerning machinery for dealing with German deliveries in kind. This report was unanimously, amid laughter and groans, referred back to the subcommittee for final drafting after one delegate after another had declared that he had not the slightest idea of what it was all about.

Cheneville, of the Exchequer Snowden, chairman of subcommittee one, following the two meetings summarized above, told the plenary session he had nothing to report, but hoped for progress on Wednesday.

The Jurists' recommendation to summons the reparations commission to London was approved but the point was raised that the commission is independent of governments and cannot be ordered here by any power, so it was resolved that each government should request its representative on the commission to appear.

OFFICIAL LOG OF LEADER'S PLANE AS IT WILL GO INTO ROUND-THE-WORLD RECORD

Total of Flying Time to Date 10 Days, 15 Hours, 35 Minutes, for Approximate Distance of 19,000 Miles.

Copyright, 1924, by the Post-Dispatch Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BROUGH, July 29.—A document secure of permanent place in the history of human flight has been obtained here by the correspondent. It is the official itinerary and log of Plane No. 2 of the round-the-world squadron of the United States Army Air Service, which has been refitting here with pontoons and new engines for the final dash across the Atlantic by way of the Orkneys, Iceland and Greenland to Labrador.

This is the machine piloted by the flight commander, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, whose companion and observer is Lieut. Arnold. The log now given to the public for the first time, covers the entire service of the planes for her test flights in the neighborhood of Clover Field, Santa Monica, Cal., beginning March 9, to her arrival here on July 17.

This log gives a total during that period of 15,335 flying minutes or 255 hours, 55 minutes, 35 seconds of actual flight, during which a distance put at approximately 19,000 miles was covered. The average speed works out to a rate of 124 miles per minute, or 744 miles an hour, for all the time spent in the air.

The actual flight began on March 17 and the plane reached here 122 days later. The longest continuous flight was made on April 6, between Seattle and Prince Rupert, B. C., when the machine, fighting her way through fog, rain, snow and high winds, was in the air 490 minutes or 8 hours, 10 minutes.

If the original schedule had carried through, the transpacific hop from Seattle to Prince Rupert, B. C., would have required a considerably longer continuous flight. But a storm forced the squadron down to the sea surface off Kamchatka, and the crossing was made in two hops, one of 330 and the other of 150 minutes, a total of 480 minutes, or 8 hours, 12 minutes.

Slowest Passage of Trip.
The slowest passage of the trip was made in flying up the coast of Alaska and out to the tip of the Aleutian Archipelago. During the month April 10 to May 9, the flyers, delayed by a combination of unfavorable weather and the disaster which overtook their leader, Major Martin, flew on only six days out of the 30.

The steadiest flying was done between July 7 and July 17, when the planes were in the air nine out of 11 days, and covered the whole distance from Karachi, on the southwestern border of India, to this point.

There were several occasions during the journey when two flights were made the same day, and of these the flights of July 8, from Allahabad to Umballa, 385 minutes, and July 9, from Umballa to Allahabad, 385 minutes, were the most prolonged. That day the machine was in the air for a total of 637 minutes, or 10 hours and 37 minutes.

The log shows the new motor installed in No. 2 here in his fifth. Her original engine, like those of the other planes, was replaced by a fresh one at the Kashimigara flying base in Japan. Engine trouble forced Lieut. Smith down in Indo-China and he got a third motor there. At Karachi, India, he got a fourth, when all the planes of the squadron were refitted.

Official Log of Machine.
The official log of the machine, as obtained here today, is as follows:

- March 9, Clover Field, to Rockwell, 90 minutes.
- March 14, Rockwell, test flight, 20 minutes.
- March 15, Rockwell, test flight, 20 minutes.
- March 16, Rockwell, to Clover Field, 92 minutes.
- March 17, Clover Field, to Sacramento (beginning of flight), 272 minutes.
- March 18, Sacramento to Eugene, Ore., 165 minutes.
- March 19, Vancouver (storm holding up advance), 88 minutes.
- March 20, Vancouver to Seattle, 143 minutes.
- March 21-April 5, Seattle, changing wheeled landing gear for pontoons.

The interlarded conference at London.

"The Dawes plan has been approved by all the Governments, including the German, as the most practicable, just and reasonable solution of the reparations problem," he added. "It must be applied practically, in a spirit of justice and with rational methods if we intend to emerge from the difficulties of the last five years."

Silent on Bankers.
Hughes refused to be drawn into discussing the terms laid down by the Anglo-American bankers, but the interviewer asking if the American market were able to absorb the German railroad industrial bonds in addition to the $80,000,000 marks necessary to start the Dawes plan in operation, he replied:

"It is not my business to make forecasts or give undertakings. However, I can say that personally I feel that the $80,000,000 marks being the first step in putting the Dawes plan into operation, it is the success of this which above all ought to be assured. That first step, however, has been accomplished, and the confidence having been restored throughout the whole world of the rest will follow as a natural consequence."

DAVIS TO URGE SMITH TO RUN FOR THIRD TERM

Presidential Nominee Thinks Governor Will Add Strength to Democratic Ticket.

WILL END MAINE VACATION WEDNESDAY

Confers With National Committeeman McGillicuddy of Maine on Conditions in New England.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DARK HARBOR, Me., July 29.—John W. Davis will be in New York Thursday morning, and as soon as possible thereafter he will see Gov. Smith of New York to urge him to run for re-election for a third term.

When Gov. Smith called to see Davis immediately after the latter's nomination for the presidency he was asked to run again for Governor, but was not pressed for a decision.

Davis now intends to urge the Governor to add his strength to the Democratic ticket as a candidate in New York.

The Davis vacation here in being cut short a day because the acceptance speech has taken form and Davis says he feels completely rested.

Davis will leave here Wednesday at 5:25 p. m. and will arrive in New York early next morning. He plans to pass the day in the city and to go to his Locust Valley home in the evening.

Unless there is some reason which he does not foresee for going outside New York, he will remain there until Aug. 8, commuting daily between the city and Locust Valley. He expects to go to Clarkburg, W. Va., on Friday, arriving the Saturday before the notification ceremony, which is set for Monday, Aug. 11.

Davis conferred yesterday with Daniel J. N. McGillicuddy, national committeeman from Maine. McGillicuddy brought to Davis a slightly less optimistic report than the nominee had received from other party leaders of Maine, who called on him. He declared that after all there was no escape from the fact that Maine is a strong Republican state and he seemed dubious that the threatened split in the Republican ranks on the Klux Klan issue would have a material effect on the general result in the state.

Aside from the situation in Maine, general conditions in New England came into the discussion. Another former law client of John W. Davis is being recalled as a weapon against him. The Republican Boston Transcript publishes the following story:

"The Massachusetts citizens of Irish extraction are opposed to Davis, not because of his friendship with Great Britain, when he served as Ambassador at the Court of St. James, nor because of his present affiliations with British organizations, although these points are included against him, but his real objection to him is that he has served as counsel in this country for the Irish Free State and in such a capacity he tied up the funds of Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish republic, in deposit in New York banks. For this action they can never forgive him."

"Publications in the interest of the Irish cause, widely circulated in Massachusetts, have already been forwarded concerning Mr. Davis and opposing his candidacy. Wherever Irish organizations meet the situation is being discussed and Davis is finding very few defenders. His advocacy of the League of Nations is another point held against him."

The Irish Free State entered the league in September, 1923, as a British Dominion over the protests of the Irish republican insurgents. Davis said yesterday it was true he had been counsel for the Irish Free State.

Shaver Says K. K. K. Will Be Issue "In Spots."
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 29.—Clém L. Shaver, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in his first formal interview with newspaper men at the headquarters of John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee, said that he believed the Ku Klux Klan will be an issue during the campaign "in spots, determined by local conditions." He added that whether the national campaign management would take cognizance of the question was a problem for the nominee to decide.

Chairman Shaver would "save time during the campaign certainly to West." Headquarters will be opened in New York and Chicago and regional offices in other places.

Shaver said that the members of

BRYAN, IN TELEGRAM TO POST-DISPATCH, EXPLAINS ATTITUDE ON DEFENSE TEST

GOV. CHARLES W. BRYAN of Nebraska, in response to a telegram from the Post-Dispatch asking for a statement of his reasons for his reported unwillingness to cooperate in the national defense test, wired as follows:

"I have not indicated an unwillingness to carry out suggestions of the President for a national test day. In a statement given to the press, Sunday, the President states in effect that he has not indorsed a mobilization movement and that the public had been misinformed as to the plans for national test day."

"I have announced that I would authorize the mobilization of all the State military forces in conjunction with the Federal military forces for test day and that I would also issue a proclamation and encourage all patriotic societies in the State to carry out suitable patriotic programs for national test day, but that I did not believe that the President intended that there was to be a mobilization of the civil, material or industrial forces of the State in conjunction with the military forces as suggested in plans sent out by the command General of the Seventh Army Corps Area stationed at Omaha."

By the Associated Press.
LINCOLN, Neb., July 29.—Gov. Bryan, Democratic candidate for the vice presidency said yesterday he had decided to keep his promise made early in the year for a mobilization of the Nebraska National Guard on Sept. 12, the day fixed by the Federal Government as Defense Day, but his co-operation would be "only to a reasonable extent."

The Governor discussed at considerable length the defense day program and took issue with President Coolidge as to the meaning of "mobilization." He interprets the recommendation of Gen. Duncan, commander of the seventh corps area at Omaha to call for the assembling of working men, farmers and civilians generally, including school children, to march in parades.

"There seems to be a difference of opinion as to what a contemplated on Sept. 12," said Gov. Bryan. "President Coolidge has written a letter in which he says mobilization has been interpreted by peace societies. I have Gen. Duncan's plan before me. I met Gen. Duncan last Saturday in Omaha and discussed the matter. His plan seems plainly to point to the participation of civil forces in the exercises of the day and making it a general holiday."

"Would interfere with Work." "Such a plan would seriously interfere with the work of farmers, those employed in shops, at the desk and counters, meaning an economic waste and giving a wrong impression and alarming the wage-slack of other nations."

"It amounts to a draft upon all civilians and I told Gen. Duncan and Adjutant-General Paul of the Nebraska National Guard, it would be so repulsive to farmers and workers that I could not issue an order or recommendation to that effect and if I did they would rebel against it."

"I have notified Gen. Duncan and Adjutant-General Paul that I do not favor any plan contemplating mobilization of the civil or industrial resources of the country or anything else that moves of a national holiday devoted to preparation for war. I do not believe the people of Nebraska or any other state would indorse any such undertaking."

Will Assemble Guard.
"I will order the National Guard to assemble and do all that is required of them by the military officers and will appoint such committees to urge patriotic societies to hold exercises as contemplated by the War Department. Gen. Duncan told me this country had lost many men during the World War by not being prepared. I told him we had saved several wars by not being prepared to fight."

"To carry out the plan as proposed with civic societies, high school children and people generally in street parades would, in my opinion, impress upon the people the importance of war when there is no war in sight, and impress children with the idea that war must be settled by war instead of by other means. It would lead foreign countries to believe this country is preparing for war and keep the military spirit rampant when we all want peace."

"Gen. Duncan said the program outlined by him is contemplated by the national defense act. I find nothing of that kind required in that act."

Russia and Germany in Settlement.
By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, July 29.—Russia and Germany have reached a settlement of the trouble growing out of the raid some time ago in Berlin of Soviet headquarters. The terms of the settlement will be announced simultaneously in Berlin and Moscow in a few days after which normal commercial and diplomatic relations will be re-established.

Shaver, acting chairman of the Democratic National Committee, had an hour's conference today with Gov. Smith and Judge George W. Oviatt, leader of Tammany Hall. "The Governor is a 'big man' was all Shaver would say afterward."

After the conference Gov. Smith said: "I will make a speaking tour. I will do anything I can to help the national ticket."

Shaver conferred with Gov. Smith and Oviatt.

BRYAN LIMITS HIS CO-OPERATION ON DEFENSE DAY

Nebraska Governor Says He Is Unwilling to Ask Workers, Farmers and Children to Participate.

WILL MOBILIZE NEBRASKA GUARD

Will Also Name Committees to Hold Patriotic Exercises — Thinks Army Plans Go Too Far.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, never tolerate demagogues of any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the publication of news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

La Follette for People.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
YOU may call the La Follette platform Socialistic, which it really is, and you may call it undemocratic or unconstitutional and use all the words and phrases you wish, but the fact remains that the La Follette platform was written for the best interests of the people. You say that the La Follette platform would advance us toward Federal empire, but I fail to see your point of view.

La Follette says the people should take the Government out of the hands of big business and put it in the hands of its rightful owners (the people). La Follette advocates the public ownership of the nation's natural resources, to be run in the interest of the people, instead of in the interest of the few for profits, as at present. In my opinion, La Follette's Socialistic platform would benefit the great masses of the people and would create a real democracy instead of a Federal empire, as you say.

I ask every fair-minded person, why is it that the daily press will either uphold Coolidge or Davis in the coming campaign? The answer is simple: The press is controlled by big business and must uphold either Coolidge or Davis, the standard bearers of big business; while La Follette, the standard bearer of the people, will receive nothing but criticism. I say, all hail to the new progressive movement which is the light and hope of the toiling masses.

Questions for Priest.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
JUDGE PRIEST, having explained that if elected Governor he would ask for the repeal of all State prohibition enforcement laws, I would have him tell the voters if, having done this, he would consider himself absolved from his oath of office to support the Constitution of the United States, which, unhappily, includes the objectionable eighteenth amendment?

Again, Judge Priest, having publicly declared that all laws should not be enforced, would he as Governor, vest the right of exemption and observance in himself or in the citizens of the State, according to individual preference?

A DEMOCRAT.

An All-Inclusive Organization.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE Democratic convention which finally elected a nominee on the 103d ballot shows that the people at large need something to hold them together as Americans. First, the delegates showed that they did not want a nominee who favored an organization such as the Ku Klux Klan to have jurisdiction over our executive affairs, while on the other hand, they did not approve of a nominee who was prejudiced against an organization which might at some future time render some good to our country. These few facts show the hesitancy of the people as whole at this time.

If some broadminded Americans would organize an association whose membership would include all persons, regardless of creed, who are citizens of the United States and desirous of becoming members of this organization and do their utmost for the country, it would prove very beneficial to all real Americans and lift the make-believe. The Ku Klux Klan would have to disband, either voluntarily or through force, because in union there lies strength. This time of all others is when such an organization is needed. Some of the qualifications for members should be, never convicted of any crime or misdemeanor; a general knowledge of the history of our country; ability to converse in the English language freely; complete knowledge of the history of our vital laws, etc.

Wants Stores.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I WAS out in Wellston last Saturday afternoon on Easton avenue—and I confess I have never seen the like of it anywhere in the United States, the business there merchants were doing. They had, in fact, too much business—they could not handle the crowds—autos of all descriptions all afternoon and evening packed the curbs and side streets. Nearly all of these customers came from nearby towns, such as Carsonville and Pine Lawn.

One of the Carsonville folks begged me to write this letter to see if I could not do something for them. Here, she says, we are out here almost 30 years and in all that time there is just the Carsonville wine garden and the one grocery store here, and it is the same thing when we want shoes, clothing or a drug store—we have either to hitch up or go in an auto into Wellston, to wait hours to be waited on. Often they are out of what we want, and we come home disappointed, so I trust some business speculators will read this letter and turn the overflow of trade to Carsonville or the other nearby towns—Pine Lawn, etc.

THE UNOFFICIAL PRETENSE.

Secretary Hughes is quoted in Paris as being extremely optimistic concerning the outcome of the London conference which has been deadlocked by a difference between the bankers and the French Premier, Herriot.

The difference is said to have been smoothed out by a suggestion of the American observer. In fact, it is reported that Mr. Hughes himself, although careful to state on all occasions that he is in Europe as a private citizen and not in his official capacity, supplied the argument and the pressure necessary to bring Herriot to the compromise point. Not only has Mr. Hughes been in London exercising influence, but Secretary Mellon and the representatives of American bankers have hovered around the conference, undoubtedly taking part in unofficial conferences.

Officially we have nothing to do with Europe. There is no such place within our official knowledge and nothing in which we as a nation take interest or can participate, but as a matter of fact we are deep in European conferences.

Official sanction has been given to the participation of an American in the work of the Reparations Commission. It will probably be an American who will hold the decisive vote on German default.

American bankers are the final arbiters on the question of security for the German loans and high American officials are by a happy combination of fortuitous circumstances on the ground at the vitally important London conference, putting influence and pressure on the side of agreement and peace.

The method of doing this work is a hypocritical device which plays to the "irreconcilable" gallery, but deceives no one. It is a good thing it is being done in any way, but the fact that American influence exercised under cover and through unofficial channels can accomplish so much indicates what might have been and might now be accomplished by frank and whole-souled co-operation with other nations.

Secretary Hughes and his associates in Europe are demonstrating the folly of the administration and the soundness of the position of those who insist that the United States should openly and frankly, so far as our principles and vital interests will permit, participate in the work of the League of Nations and in the councils and conferences which are trying to rehabilitate Europe economically and maintain peace. When unofficial influence and counsel do so much, what would not official activity accomplish?

William H. Anderson is quoted as denying that he intends to write a novel. The former Antislavery League chief probably feels that composing fiction has gotten him into enough trouble already.

THE NEWSPAPER BUNGALOW.

When we saw in the Post-Dispatch the other day the picture of a bungalow made entirely of old newspapers glued together and compressed, we could not refrain from envying the dwellers in that house. They are envied with what may be termed a complete cosmos, in the walls of their habitation. If they be of imaginative turn and let their fancies rove, what visions they may see!

Proud ships plowing far seas; birdmen flying above the clouds; researchers in dead cities digging up the irrevocable past; Parliaments making or un-making laws; Kings and Presidents signing decrees that affect mankind for better or for worse; orators thrilling populates and demagogues disturbing the status quo; divas of divine trill uplifting and expanding the souls of multitudes; robbers and murderers plying their infamous trades; plutocrats and paupers going each his way to dusty death; armies being decimated by machine-gun fire or stricken by poison gas; cities building, pioneers plunging into the farther forests, nations dying and being born.

All such things, and many more, are crypted in the glued and compressed copies of old newspapers which constitute the walls of this home. It asks but the exercise of fancy to bring them forth, revitalize them, watch them pass in procession—a panoramic splendor de luxe.

And, just before dropping into slumber, may not the occupant of the newspaper bungalow insure to himself a good night's rest by taking thought of the fact that his house—albeit no lumber figures in its construction—originally was a section of forest, green and cool and silent, a part of that divine serenity which is nature?

WHAT A PIKER I WAS.

From the New York Evening Post.

DEFENSE OR GOOSE-STEP?

President Coolidge, in a statement, declares that what has hitherto been known as Mobilization Day, Sept. 12, has been misnamed, and that its proper label is Defense Day. He also defends the purpose as merely carrying out the provisions of the defense law of 1920—"a nonmilitaristic gesture for keeping down to its lowest possible point the professional military organization of the United States."

As originally heralded from Washington by the correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, "all the vast combatant potentialities of the nation will be mobilized to show what its citizens would do and what its military organizations could do if actual emergency arose. . . . In every city and hamlet in the United States, in field and factory and outlying island possessions, wherever the Stars and Stripes are unfurled, citizens will be called upon to offer their services just as if actual war had been declared." And Leonard Cline in the New Republic writes:

The radio will sound the call to arms. The newspapers are expected to do their part, and what could be more fitting for them than a spread on the first page: "WAR!" Better stage managers might issue general orders to the women and children to weep all day to complete the picture.

Accepting the President's statement at face value, it is, nevertheless, a fact that offenses have been committed by some of the army exponents of the plan that have justified the protests of the peace societies. Five indignant auditors at a closed Chamber of Commerce meeting at Columbus, O., were told, in affidavits charged Brigadier-General Albert J. Bowley, the speaker, with having attacked the National Council for Prevention of Wars, among whose officers are Jane Addams, Carrie Chapman Catt, President Hibben of Princeton, President Lowell of Harvard, William Allen White, Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis and Frederick J. Libby, in answer to whose protests the President's recent statement was issued.

Other instances have been related on good authority of the scurrilous attacks made by some of the spokesmen of "Defense Day" on persons of high character and national prominence connected with the peace movement.

Let the day come on and meet criticism on its merits. Nothing except performance will demonstrate whether a legitimate defense measure is to be tried out or whether, as charged, a program is being attempted to goose-step America.

If the motor bus company wants 200 per cent for its lines it is only following orthodox U. R. precedent.

NO PROFIT IN DECEPTION.

No fault can be found with the action of the Federal Trade Commission in ordering certain St. Louis coal companies to cease merchandising the output of their mines as coal of a well known brand when it is not produced in the field implied by the use of the brand.

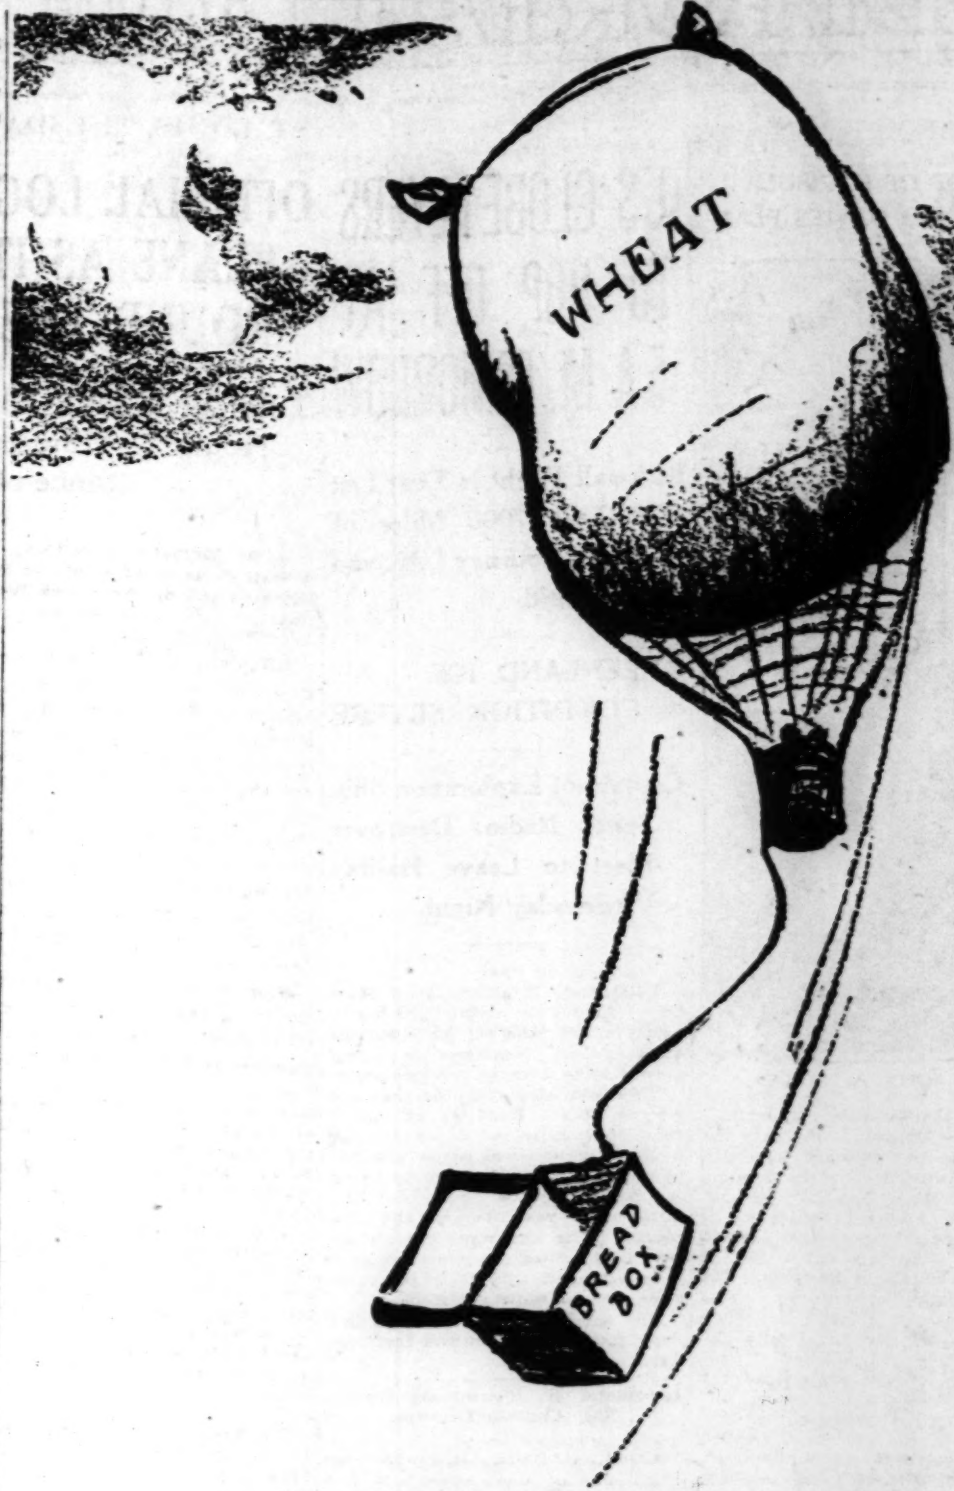

It appears from the commission's finding that the coal companies pretended to supply the product of a restricted field and that is has a quality and value greater than the product of adjacent fields. Assuming the correctness of the commission's conclusion as to its quality and value and the relatively lower quality and value of the product of other fields, the effect of the companies' misrepresentation was to deceive the public into buying inferior fuel in the belief that it was buying superior fuel, a simple case of misbranding and counterfeiting.

Even if it were true, as claimed, that the product offered was of even quality with the other, there would still be the objection to appropriating the enterprise and advertising of producers of the named brand by the companies which had done nothing to give the coal a reputation, which would be unethical if not dishonest.

But it is interesting to be told that the companies against which the order is issued have not found misrepresentation profitable, for one of them has gone out of business and the other is in the hands of a receiver. So again it is shown that in advertising and merchandising it is good business to tell the truth.

Large paintings by old masters are no longer popular in England because of the diminishing size of dwellings. It was the miniaturist who had the foresight.

European leaders are still looking for the brand of oratory that will convince a money lender.

PANETELA.

Y ES, Lucilla.
This is summer
Sort of warming
Up at last;
In a little While its humors
Will have Reigned a day
And passed.
On a morning
Not far distant,
When the hills
Are faint and gray,
Lo, the sweet
And lovely Summer
Will at length
Have gone its way!

What a Summer.
Sweet Lucilla!
When was season
Half so fair?
When was there
Another freshness
Like to this one
In the air?
When were all
Green things
So glowing
And the flowers
Quite so bright.
Or the cool,
Brisk breath
Of Summer
Come so gratefully
At night?

Has there been
A hot day, dearie?
Not that you recall.
Day by day
The season holds us
In its unrelenting Thrills.
Each new morn
A thing of beauty.
Each new even
Like the rest,
Just as if
By being patient
We were numbered
With the best.

Like as not,
My little girlie,
If the truth
Were fully told,
There is for Us here a moral Precious in Its turn as gold.
Probably
The truest Heaven,
Fast all chance
Of doubt and fear.
Is the one
We make with patience
And sweet Acceptance here.

What we therefore
Had to hope for.
Having hardly endured Summers not
At all like this one.
Is the one
We have secured.
Each day fairer
Than another.
Gladness even Unto men.
All things
In the present perfect
Just because We stood it then.

Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania thinks Senator La Follette does not want to be President, but wishes merely to be the father of a new political party. It is improbable that the Wisconsin Senator has in mind being the father of anything. He is seizing upon a moment of widespread dissatisfaction to lead a revolt against government for too few people, and if such a movement is to be seriously opposed by the Republican party, that corrupt and aristocratic old organization will have to do some better thinking than Senator Pepper is doing. Senator La Follette has no more expectation of being elected President next fall than the Pennsylvania Senator. What he has in mind was expressed by Magnus Johnson when the latter said: "All I can do in Congress is just to sit around and wait for more friends to show up." The La Follette bloc in Congress is big enough to keep Mr. Coolidge and his crowd from putting anything through; it is not big enough for the insurgents to initiate legislation. Senator La Follette hopes to make it big enough. He would much rather hold Congress in the hollow of his hand than sit around in the White House wishing Congress were with him.

RUSSIAN PROVERBS.

When money speaks, truth keeps silence.
The Russian is clever, but always too late.
To shave destroys the image of God.
The kindness of the landlord is as fleeting as the dew.
Man is caught by his tongue, an ox by his horns.
In the next world sinners have to count red-hot coins with their bare hands.
Trust in God, but mind your own business.
He is a fool who makes his physician his heir.
A woman's hair is long but her sense short.
Go before God with justice, before the Judge with money.
A fool shoots, God guides the bullet.
A great head has great ears.
A bachelor is a goose sans water.
A nobleman is always right when the peasant sues.
A husband is father of his wife.
The fall of the leaf is a whisper to the living.
Truth is straight, but Judges are crooked.
A frightened Freshman runs away from even a she-goat.
Marry not a priest's daughter.

GEORGIA AND HER PEACHES.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.
IF Georgia is to be seized by the world, there is a better reason for the seizure than its mere refusal to ratify a constitutional amendment. Not long ago it was necessary to apologize for omitting the peach from the list of products of the state. Now it is necessary to apologize for omitting the peach from the list of products of the state.

Georgia that the crop was a bumper one, all right, but the peach groves have dumped 4,000,000 bushels of the fruit in the creeks and rivers. If that isn't enough for trying Georgia in a sack and dropping it out in the woods, it is worse to pin any hopes on its rejection of the child labor amendment. About the only thing that Georgia is favorably known for is its peach crop. To be sure, the peach crop has been ruined by frosts or floods or bugs, or something else equally devastating, almost every year but this one, yet it has been tolerated in the select company of the Union always in the hope that some year would bring fewer frosts, floods or bugs and more peaches. Nature has decided that lingering faith, but the very last time that Georgia has an opportunity to justify its existence by tickling the palate of patient epicure the peach groves are something ## G. O. P. TO FIGHT FOR SENATORS IN EIGHTEEN STATES

Situation Is Outlined to Coolidge by Moses of New Hampshire, Who Says East Fears Bryan.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 29.—The battle ground determined upon by the Republican senatorial committee in its campaign to elect Republican senatorial candidates was sketched for President Coolidge by the committee's chairman, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, yesterday.

It embraces 18 states, stretching from Maine to Montana and extending as far in the border section between the north and the south as West Virginia. Nineteen senatorial seats will be filled in these states, and of them 15 now are occupied by Republicans, three by Democrats and one by a Farmer-Laborite.

Senator Moses also laid before Mr. Coolidge observations on the general political situation gained during an organization tour of New England and the middle Atlantic section.

"The morale and strength of the Democratic party in the East has been affected very detrimentally by its convention, the choice of its nominees, and by the La Follette movement," he said in summing up those observations. "The conservative Democrats and Independent voters of this section do not intend to take any chances which will throw the election into Congress and possibly make Charles W. Bryan President. Therefore, they are going to vote for Coolidge."

Watson Issues Statement.
A similar view was taken by Senator Watson of Indiana, a member of the senatorial campaign committee who issued a statement saying "as careful an analysis of the situation as can be made at this time leads to the conclusion that the presidential race is between Coolidge and Bryan, for Coolidge and Dawes are not elected in November, Bryan is quite likely to be chosen by the Senate later on."

Mr. Coolidge was given surveys of the political situation in Missouri by Senator Spencer of that State and of the Southwest by Senator Cameron of Arizona.

Spencer, after his conference with Mr. Coolidge, issued a statement in which he said that there was "every indication in Missouri that La Follette will take a much larger percentage of votes from the Democrats than from the Republicans," and that the attitude of his colleague, Senator Reed, would be a factor determining to no inconsiderable extent the fortunes of the Democrats.

Battle Ground States.
The 18 states in which the Republican Senatorial Committee will conduct its campaign for Republican candidates were listed by Chairman Moses as follows: Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Illinois, Delaware, West Virginia, Nebraska, Iowa, Michigan, Montana, Colorado (two seats), Minnesota, Kansas, South Dakota, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Watson, in his statement, directed attention to what he described "as the opposite poles of thought," represented by the Democratic presidential and vice presidential candidates. "The real question is the election of Gov. Bryan," the Indiana Senator said, referring to the possibility of the election going to Congress. "This possibility should stimulate all those who believe in standing by the Constitution and the right to acquire, possess and enjoy the use of private property, of all those who oppose the Government ownership and operation of the railroads of all those who are opposed to Socialism and extreme radicalism to rally to Coolidge's standard and prevent the possibility of taking the contest in Congress."

President Coolidge has begun to put on paper the address he will deliver here Aug. 14, when he is formally notified of his nomination. Preparations for the notification ceremonies have been virtually completed by James D. Reynolds, director of the Washington headquarters of the Republican National Committee.

NEW MUNICIPAL PUBLICATION MAKES ITS APPEARANCE

The first issue of a bi-monthly illustrated publication, "St. Louis Facts," appeared today, for free distribution. It is printed in the attractive style of a travel magazine, with a cover picture in colors of a scene at Fort Belvedere, and with articles on the new Nathan Frank Bandstand in Forest Park, Bellefontaine Farm, city food and milk inspection, and other branches of the work of the city government. The Health Department's monthly bulletin appears as a part of the issue.

Nelson Cunliff, director of public welfare, is editor, and Henry D. LaCombe assistant editor. "To acquaint St. Louisans with the accomplishments of the municipal government" is an announced purpose of the publication, the cost of which is paid by the city. "Accomplishments" is a word which is sometimes used in municipal campaigns, such as the one which will take place next spring, when a Mayor will be elected.

PART THREE.

FEDERAL TROOPS LED BY TANKS INTO SAO PAULO

Rebels Evacuate City and Flee in Special Trains to Interior of Brazil—City
Slightly Damaged.

CIVIL POPULATION WELCOMES FEDERALS

Governor Who Had Been Deposed by Insurgents Resumes Office—End of Rebellion Near.

By the Associated Press.
SAO PAULO, July 29.—After 21 days of almost continuous fighting, the Brazilian rebel forces
yesterday evacuated the city of Sao Paulo under pressure of the Government besieging army, which is now in possession of the entire city. This information is contained in an official announcement by the Brazilian war office.

The rebels fled in special trains toward the interior of Brazil and are being pursued. Their only chance of escape are to the west
and northwest, and the official communications assert that Government troops in those regions
already are in positions to deal with them.

The withdrawal of the rebels
from Sao Paulo followed severe fighting inside the city on Sunday.
The rebels appear to have made a desperate effort to hold back the Government advance, but failed.

Tanks Used Against Rebels.
At daybreak yesterday the Federal forces brought up tanks into the city against the rebels. These were followed by infantry. The rebels already had begun their evacuation when this assault was made. The Federal tanks numbered 10, and the rebel leaders, including Gen. Isidoro Lopez, escaped. It is reported that the rebel Major Miguel Costa failed to escape and committed suicide.

When the Federal troops possessed the state capital at noon,
Governor, Carlos da Campos,
who had been deposed by the rebels,
resumed his office.

Advice received here today from the correspondent of the Association Press at Santos, sent by messenger July 18, said the indications at that time were that the morale of the rebels was breaking owing to their inability to win the support of prominent Sao Paulo divisions and that it seemed certain the revolution would collapse
in a few days.

The general opinion in Buenos Aires is that the news of the defeat of the rebels will put an end to the revolutionary spirit, which is reported to have been in evidence in some other parts of Brazil.

Official reports received here
from Brazil describe the inhabitants of the battered capital as having greeted the Federal forces with rejoicing.

Rebels Were Militarists.
It is understood the defeat of the rebels at Sao Paulo is regarded with special satisfaction by the Argentine Government. The rebel military leaders, according to statements in political circles, were considered as belonging to the extreme militaristic element in Brazil, and had they succeeded, it was feared they would have pursued an expansionist policy embarrassing
to Argentina and other South American nations.

Reports Received from Sao Paulo Sunday night, were that the Federal forces which had been driving their way into the city
from the south, had penetrated
along the eastern side as far as the Brazilian Central railway station, while troops from the north and west—also had closed in,
threatening the Luz railway station. Both stations were under attack.

It is reported the Federal forces used heavy artillery on these and other points with telling effect, demoralizing the rebels. In the action of Sunday morning, the rebels were reported to have gained advances, driving back the invaders in some places.

The Federal success at Sao Paulo came in fulfillment of the Government's expectation that the rebels would be overcome in a major offensive as soon as the civil population of the city, approximately 600,000, had been given an opportunity to evacuate the city.
This evacuation had been going on for more than a week, though many thousands of persons still remained when Sunday's attack was made.

Rebels Leave by Train.
The rebels fled from the city yesterday, taking trains from the railway station by two roads,
one leading northwest and the other west. The trains appear to have got away without Federal interference.

The Federal forces, however, are said

HUGHES TELLS PARIS BAR DEMOCRACY NEEDS LAWYER

Declares—Expert Service of Broad-Visioned Counsel Is Required—Says True Attorney Is "Apostle of Progress."

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, July 29.—Lawyers whose diplomas are sealed "by an authority of conscience which is higher than that of any Government," must furnish the leadership for the democracies of the world for "if we are true to our profession, we are the apostles of progress," Secretary of State Hughes declared at the reception of the Paris Bar Association to the American lawyers
who are visiting Paris.

Hughes, as president of the American Bar Association, thanked the French Bar for its invitation to the American lawyers and for their hospitality.

Speaking as a lawyer to lawyers,
he emphasized the need in a democracy of "the expert service of lawyers of broad vision, of those who are trained in the law but are neither overwhelmed by their learning, nor governed by its technicalities."

"Our systems of law are unlike in some respects," Hughes told his French colleagues. "Our methods of administration present certain striking differences, but our sense of duty of purpose is so profound that these differences merely excite sympathy, interest and a desire to understand their historic causes and effects."

Same Standard of Guilt.
Commenting on how much alike
were the results attained by different processes, the American statesman declared:

"In what is fundamental—our conceptions of what one ought to do, what one owes to his neighbor
and what constitutes social wrong and essential public justice

to be in full pursuit and the belief prevails that the rebels are doomed
to capture or dispersal as the Federal troops have been concentrating to the west and northwest of the city during the last week and are in possession of various towns in this region within a radius of 50
or 60 miles of Sao Paulo.

Rio Janeiro like Santos, enthusiastically celebrated the victory at Sao Paulo. The streets of the harbor and factories throughout the city, sounded their whistles; flags
and banners were thrown to the breezes and troops marching along the Avenida Rio Branco were cheered and showered with flowers.

The Senate held an exuberant session at which a committee was appointed to wait upon and congratulate President Bernardes on the defeat of the rebels.

Reorganization Next.
"It is up to us to re-organize Brazil in a manner so that it will be able to repress once for all the possibilities of such rebellions,
through revisions of laws of our form, or confessions of failure of our form of government," President Bernardes is quoted as declaring
last night in replying to a committee of Senators.

The President said he looked upon the Sao Paulo movement as coming after the revolt at Rio a year ago, as evidence of the weakness of the laws of Brazil regarding the repression of sedition.

The 30,000,000 of free-thinking Brazilians, he declared, could not be left a prey to a handful of discontented adventurers such as had tried to stab the nation in the back, surprising the Government
while it was bending its efforts to the reconstruction of the country.

The President has also to consider the question of dealing with reference to the damage suffered by the property of their nationals and also with reference to the killing of foreigners during the revolt. Although estimates of the total damage are not yet available from official quarters, it is believed it will run into many millions of dollars
and that the number of soldiers and civilians killed or wounded will reach hundreds. According to reports not officially verified, some of Sao Paulo's finest structures were reduced to ruins.

The greatest interest centers in the fate of Gen. Isidoro Lopez, leader of the revolt, who fled to the interior with his troops.

BELL PHONE CO. TO SEEK HIGHER RATES

Application to Be Filed Within a Month Will Be Opposed
by City of St. Louis.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 29.—An application for an increase in telephone rates will be filed by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company with the State Public Service Commission, within the next month, it was learned today.

E. F. Carter, general commercial manager of the Southwestern Bell Company, recently held an informal conference here with members of the commission and notified them the application for a new schedule of rates would be filed some time during August. The increase to be sought and the classes of service to be affected were not disclosed in the conference, it was said.

Cost of the consolidation of the Kinloch system with the Bell system in St. Louis and the increased cost of operating the combined systems over that of operating the Bell system will necessitate higher rates in St. Louis, the commission was informed.

Merger Nears Completion.
The merger of the systems will be completed by Saturday. Bell Company officials have announced.
The Kinloch system was purchased by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in 1922 for $4,- 300,000 to be paid in preferred stock, plus $140,000 cash, and the Bell Company was to assume morgages and other indebtedness not to exceed $5,500,000.

A forecast of the company's plans
to seek higher rates was contained in a statement filed with the Commission last March, when the company obtained from the Commission a six months' extension of the existing schedule of telephone rates in St. Louis.

"The present rates are not now
and in the future cannot possibly be compensatory for the cost of maintenance of the property used, or used in rendering exchange telephone service in St. Louis," the statement said.

"However, your petitioner con-curs with the views of the Commission, repeatedly expressed, that no change in rates should be made until such time as the service is completely unified." This latter reference was to the merger of the two systems.

Return of 6 1/2 Per Cent.
The six months' financial statement presented by the company at that time showed earnings that would pay a return of approximately 6 1/2 per cent on the company's investment in the Bell system. In most of its rate cases the Commission has held approximately 7 per cent to be a reasonable return.

Any proposal to increase the St.
Louis telephone rates probably will be opposed by the City of St. Louis, it is said. City Counselor Senti already has filed with the Commission an application for leave to file an intervening petition seeking an audit and valuation of the property of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in St. Louis, before any increase in rates is granted to the company.

Senti's application to intervene declared the rates now charged in St. Louis are adequate to provide a fair return on the properties of the Southwestern Bell company. Should a valuation be ordered by the Commission to fix a permanent base for rate making, this would require many months and extend the determination of future rates indefinitely.

FOUR CHILDREN BITTEN WHEN THEY THROW WATER ON DOG Court Complaint Filed Against Woman Who Is Owner of Animal.

Four children residing in the vicinity of Compton and Park avenues were bitten by a dog about noon yesterday when they threw water on the animal while playing in the rear of 1523 South Compton.

The dog, belonging to Mrs. Lulu Tockstein of 2224 Hickory street, was being led with a rope through an alley by Robert Walker, 13 years old, son of Mrs. Lulu Walker, 3220 St. Vincent avenue, when the Walker boy met five or six other children and stopped to play. In the course of the romping, water was thrown on the animal and it tried to escape. Four children seized the rope and the dog turned on them. Those bitten were Juanita Williams, 9 years old, 1523
South Compton avenue; Carlisle
Elkhorst, 18, of 1523A South
Compton; George Green, 9, of 1521
South Compton, and George Hendrix, 9, of 1518 South Compton.

Police filed a court complaint against Mrs. Tockstein, charging her with keeping a dog unlicensed and untrained. She was notified to keep the dog confined for ten days for observation.

ANOTHER ASSOCIATION OPPOSES GRAIN MERGER

Farmers Grain Dealers' Holds Farmer Companies Must Control All Stock.

By the Associated Press.
DES MOINES, Ia., July 29.—
The National Farmers Grain Dealers' Association, in which 5000
grain elevators in the Middle West hold memberships, yesterday declared it would continue to withhold its endorsement until the grain merger plan was modified to provide that all stock must be held by farmers' elevator companies and not by individuals.

The organization endorsed the plans and purposes of the National Farmers Elevator Commission Co.,
now being promoted by the farmers' elevator companies of Illinois and Iowa and commended it to all farmers' elevator organizations
tributary to the Chicago market.

By the Associated Press.
WINNIPEG, Man., July 29.—A wheat pool merger which contemplates the marketing of the entire wheat crop of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta by one cooperative organization is being planned. The greater part of the wheat crop of these provinces has,

in the past, been marketed by separate provincial pools.

Whether the merger will be effected in time to market this year's crop is uncertain, but those behind
the movement declare they will begin wholesale co-operative marketing operations by next year.

"Canada has been a pioneer in advancing the interests of its farmers by the adoption of a co-operative marketing system," an official statement declared. "The co-operative movement in the nation is more than 20 years old. Practically every product of Canadian farms is now marketed cooperatively. The system has enabled the farmers to get the highest prices at a minimum cost of marketing."

Hays County jail at San Marcos on

BROWNS BAT OUT OF TURN AT UMPIRE'S ORDER; GAME PROTESTED

Owens Admits Mistake;

Red Sox Score 5 Runs

In Tenth to Win, 10-5

Shocker Weakens in Seventh, Infielders' Failure to Cover First Being Costly—Lyons and Bayne Pounded by Boston Batters—Final Game of Series Today.

By Herman Wecke,

Each day in baseball brings out some new angle heretofore unthought of. Such was the case yesterday when the Browns dropped a 10 to 5 decision in 10 innings to the Boston Red Sox. The new freak was brought about by an umpire, Clarence B. "Brick" Owens, and resulted in the Browns filing a protest with B. B. Johnson, president of the American League.

The new one for the 1924 book cropped out in the ninth inning. In the eighth, with the Sox three markers to the good, Manager Sisler made numerous changes. There were pinch hitters and pinch runners. One of the athletes who broke in this way was McMillan, who ran for Severed. McMillan remained in the contest as shortstop, replacing Gerber and by all the rules of the pastime, he should hit in Severed's place.

After a pass to McManus and Robertson's double had given the Browns a tie in the ninth, it was McMillan's turn to bat and right there Clarence B. "Brick" Owens stepped in and gummed the works. He insisted that Tony Rego bat. Rego had replaced Severed behind the plate. This in spite of all Manager Sisler's protests. "All right," Rego batted. He rolled to Shank and the contest drifted into the extra round. Rego was clubbing out of turn.

Browns Had No Chance. After the Fohlmen had put over five runs as a result of three hits, two bases on four hits, and a fielder's choice against Lyons and Bayne in their portion of the tenth, McMillan, batting out of turn, started the round by going out.

With this turn of affairs, the Browns were up against it. All around. Had Rego made a hit in the ninth and scored Robertson with the winning run, the Red Sox management would have protested that he should have batted. In the same thing would have happened had McMillan, batting out of turn, started the tenth with a safety.

And by all the laws of baseball, the Red Sox would have been in the right, although it was not the Browns, but Umpire "Brick" Owens, who insisted that the locals bat out of turn.

Rego Out Even If He Hit. Therefore the protest from the Browns. It's a cinch that the Red Sox would have protested had Rego or McMillan come through with a safety and Umpire Owens had refused to allow the claim.

It was just a case of the Browns having no chance to win. After it was all over, Umpire Owens admitted that he had blundered. The arbiter asserted that he had lost sight of the fact that McMillan ran for Severed and that when McMillan asked him if

Up to Ban Johnson to Prescribe Remedy if Protest Is Allowed

Manager George Sisler's protest of yesterday's game, in which Umpire Owens is said to have ordered the wrong man to bat at a critical point in the ninth inning, is allowed, it will be up to President Ban Johnson to decide what then will happen.

Two courses are possible: First, President Johnson may order the entire game replayed; second, he may rule that the game be replayed from the point where McMillan should have batted.

In the second case, if McMillan would win the game right there, if he failed, the game would be tied in the ninth and played off until one side won in even extra innings.

In case the protest is allowed, the replay will take place during the next visit of the Boston team, starting Sept. 13.

It was his turn to hit, he said that it was Rego's.

Now it will be up to President Ban Johnson of the American League to settle the question. It looks as though it is one of the few protests filed by a club that really has a chance to stand.

As regards the ball game, it was a hurling duel between Urban Shocker and Bill Piercy for the first six rounds. In that time each permitted one run. In the seventh Shocker weakened and the Sox scored.

Piercy was credited with a safety on his hunt to Shocker, when no member of the Browns thought it necessary to cover first.

But after that it was just a three-run contest. Grant, Lyons and Bayne, who succeeded Shocker, were ineffective. Piercy was routed in the Browns' seventh, while Quinn, who replaced him, also was derelicted. Ferguson did a good job of relief work and won the game. A safety by either Piercy or Evans against Ferguson in the eighth, when the bases were crowded would without a doubt have averted all the trouble Owens got himself into in the ninth. At the time, the locals were only a length behind.

The final with the Red Sox today. Tomorrow the Yankees, once again league leaders, open a series of four battles here.

Lewis to Be Barred Unless He Opposes Winner

Is Expected to Let Down Fighters to Men Champion Sidestepped.

STEVINA IS ELIGIBLE

Eight-Year Fight for Recognition by Jugo Slav Near Realization.

By John E. Wray,

Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Plans were launched yesterday

which promise to break

the acrimony placed on the heavyweight wrestling championship

by the present holder of the title, Robert Frederichs,

known to the profession as Ed

"Manager" Lewis.

Tom Jacks, who has been proposing wrestling shows here for the past year, said yesterday that he would launch a heavyweight

wrestling championship, open to all weights, the winner to meet the champion if he will consent.

It Lewis declines a match with the winner in this city by the process, Lewis has made many hundreds of dollars out of exhibitions in this city in the last three years; the threat is not an idle one.

The tournament plan is the suggestion of Promoter Jacks and no

number of good character will be sent.

May Force Title Matches.

This means that Evko, Plestina,

and others who have been holding Lewis for some time, will have a chance to gain the challenging position and force Lewis

to either wrestle or retire.

Plans for furthering the tournament will go forward as soon as the Plestina-Lewis and other matches now arranged are off the cards.

That interest here in wrestling

is evident from the daily

drum that gathers at the National gym and pays an admission

fee to see the workouts of Ple-stina, London, Gobar, Evko and other giants.

Plestina, a big grizzly of a man,

is in better shape than he has appeared for any bout in this city,

and London is in his usual fine condition.

Evko Attracts Attention.

Evko, one of the upcoming young heavyweights, believed to be able to give Lewis a tough rout, and possibly defeat him, is attracting great attention in his practice.

The question of the referee was set up to George Bothner, the former lightweight champion, of New York. Eight candidates were con-

Chicago's 112 Courses.

ST. LOUISANS who think that golf is thriving here, where we have a dozen private clubs and municipal facilities consisting of the Forest Park 18-hole and nine-hole courses, will be startled when they hear the facts about the extent to which the game has been developed in Chicago.

In the Chicago district, within a radius of 40 miles of the loop, there are 112 golf courses.

Thirteen of these are daily fee courses, constructed and promoted for profit.

Six of the links are in the public parks.

Four are Forest Preserve courses and others are contemplated on portions of the 30,000 acres at the disposal of the Cook County Forest Preserve Commission.

Three are suburban community courses and a fourth is under construction.

The Forest Preserve.

TWO of the courses on the Forest Preserve territory were built by the commission and the daily fee is only 50 cents. One was constructed by the street railway company, which figured on transportation profit.

An arrangement was made with the Forest Preserve Commission whereby the course will revert to the commission when the street car company gets back its investment through daily fee.

One course was built by private capital on the Forest Preserve territory, with the same understanding. When the promoters get back their investment and a fair profit, the course will revert to the commission.

Many interests are eager to co-operate in building new golf courses on the preserve territory. The real estate man sees a chance to sell home lots. The street car company sees heavy Saturday and Sunday travel.

$62,000 Profit in Year.

Then there is a good profit in the daily fee course. The Harlem Golf Club is reported to have cleared $62,000 last year.

Other daily fee courses were all built within the last three years and they are all thriving. They are crowded on Saturdays and Sundays and have a fair play during the week. Not one has failed to make money.

Persons wishing to play frequently had difficulty in arranging a date convenient, and so eight of the daily fee courses are affiliated and now there is a booking agent, who informs players as to which courses are least crowded, and registers them for play.

The average fee on these courses is $1 on week days and $2 on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The Public Park Courses.

At the public park courses, controlled by the Park Board, the charge is 15 cents a round for the nine-hole course and 25 cents for the 18-hole course.

There is an 18-hole and a nine-hole course at Jackson Park; 18 holes at Marquette and nine-hole courses at Lincoln, Garfield, and Columbus parks.

Formerly it was possible to sign up a week or more in advance for the park courses. There was a registration book and every other place was for signers in advance. At 9:10, 9:20, 9:30 and so on, four courses were booked a week or more ahead of time, each player paying 10 cents extra for the advance privilege. The intervening starting times were reserved for signers on the day of playing.

There were so many complaints against advance signers on the ground that those who got to the book first could monopolize the links that this year the Park Board changed the system and you have to sign up the day you wish to play. You pay the 15 or 25 cents when you sign and if you don't show up on time you forfeit the money. Players start in foursomes, at five-minute intervals.

Formerly they even sold defaults at the course and there was a long string of default purchasers every Saturday and Sunday.

Transportation Problem.

Transportation facilities between Chicago and the daily fee courses vary. As in St. Louis and any metropolitan district, the automobile is the best means of transportation. The motor takes you direct to the club. There is a walk from the depot or the trolley car. By train and trolley Chicago daily fee courses vary from 20 minutes to more than an hour from the loop.

The daily fee courses have drawn heavily from the private clubs, many members withdrawing and doing their golfing on the fee courses. They can play a different course every week throughout the season and the average golfer likes variety. In the days before prohibition the

Big Bill Tate to Coach Luis Firpo For Wills Battle

Giant Negro Will Box in Secret With Argentine to Prepare Him for Bout.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Luis

Angel Firpo will train at Tom Luther's White Sulphur Springs resort on Saratoga Lake, for the bout with Harry Wills.

Firpo will be occupying the same quarters graced by Jack Dempsey when the heavyweight champion prepared for the bout with Firpo last year.

Julio Litteraga, a countryman of Firpo's, will act as his trainer and boss of the camp. Frank Flournoy, Tex Rickard's right hand man, was at Luther's yesterday closing terms for the Firpo crew of trainers and henchmen.

Miguel Ferra, a 150-pounder of the Argentine, who has won four fights in a row with knockouts, will be one of Firpo's real dependants in the boxing line.

Bill Tate, the giant negro, who has fought Wills six times, will act as an assistant trainer and he will work in secret practice with Firpo, giving him all he knows of Wills' weak points, not forgetting the strong.

Firpo wants to get Joe Stoesael, too, and besides his own men and Tate, he will ask John Lester Johnson and Frank Koebel, the Brooklyn light heavyweight, to help him.

Firpo intends to leave for Luther's today or tomorrow. He will do no boxing until four weeks before the bout. His first work will be road work, rope skipping and he will punch a heavy bag that he has brought all the way from Buenos Aires.

MUNICIPAL TENNIS

TOURNAMENT MUST BE FINISHED BY SUNDAY

Only one match was played yesterday afternoon in the annual Municipal tennis tournament at Forest Park. Ted Drewes and Ted Heuermann advanced another round in the men's doubles event by defeating the junior team of William Bell and Robert Norton, 6-3, 6-2.

Today's schedule follows: Singles, Ted Drewes vs. William Elmerman; Heuermann vs. E. Groerich; Doubles, Anderson and Kunze vs. Applebaum and Jones.

Tomorrow in the doubles, Niemoller and Sauselle meet Smith and Smith. Thursday in the singles, Joe Smith plays Arthur Niemoller and in the doubles, Crookwell and McMillan meet the winner of Anderson-Kunze and Applebaum-Jones match.

Third-round contests must be completed by Thursday night and the tournament must be finished by Sunday night in order to qualify players for the National Municipal championship, which opens Aug. 6 in Detroit.

LEIGH SATISFIED WITH EPINARD'S PROGRESS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 29.—Epinaud had a stronger gallop than usual yesterday. He wanted to run, too. Eugene Leigh again expressed himself as more than satisfied with the progress made.

He said: "I have never seen a horse improve so fast as Epinaud since his arrival here. The climate and water agree with him and yesterday morning he wanted to run off with the boy—something he has never done before, as he is easy to ride, easy to place at all times. He'll be getting something fast before the week is over from the looks of things."

Yanks Regain Lead by Beating Chicago Twice

Huggins' Men Make 10 Runs in First Inning of Second Game.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Nursing

a grudge against the White Sox for cheating them out of Sunday's game and the American League lead, the Yankees visited vengeance upon their conquerors and ascended into first place on the wings of a double victory. Detroit helped matters along by dropping its second straight to Philadelphia and Washington respectively retired to third position as a result of a defeat by Cleveland.

New York's first win over Chicago by 8 to 3 was due more to the White Sox's ineffective hitting than the Yanks' superiority but the Huggins left no doubt in the minds of their opponents as to the positive quality of their offensive in the nightcap, which they clinched in the first inning by chasing 16 runs over the plate and ultimately won by 12 to 10. In that hectic opening session Babe Ruth doubled off Mangum and hit his thirty-first homer of the season off Cveengros.

Going into the seventh inning with a 4 to 0 lead, Detroit frittered away its advantage and Philadelphia finally emerged on the long end of a 7 to 4 score in the eleventh chukker. Lamar's circuit drive with two on in the final round put the game in the Athletics' cupboard.

Pitching was the decisive factor in Cleveland's 2 to 1 decision over Washington. Mogridge and Russell twirled well, but Coveleskie outshone both.

Giants Seven Games Ahead.

Because Chicago was too sportsmanlike to win while New York was losing, the Giants today still lead the National by seven games.

When their ninth-inning rally fell one run shy the Cubs were nosed out by Philadelphia 12 to 11, in a slugfest. Each team had four pitchers and all were helpless before the batting cyclone.

ANTHRAX REPORTED IN FIVE STATES

25 Counties in Mississippi, 20 in Arkansas, 5 in Tennessee Affected.

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 29.—Federal, State and county forces joined hands today to check the spread of anthrax in Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas, where more than 2000 head of cattle are reported to have died of the disease.

Reports indicated a serious situation in Mississippi and Arkansas while certain small areas in Tennessee, Louisiana and Missouri were said to be infected.

Gov. Henry L. Whitfield of Mississippi said 25 counties in that State had infected herds and that about 16 persons had died. The superintendent of the State Health Department at Jackson said last night, however, that only six deaths had been reported officially.

Arkansas reported 20 infected counties, with a death list of six or eight persons.

Five counties in Tennessee are infected, the State veterinarian reported. No deaths have resulted in this State, so far as is known, and the loss of livestock was said to have been small.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee, sent a telegram to Secretary Henry C. Wallace, of the United States Department of Agriculture, urging the aid of the department in the campaign against the disease. McKellar suggested use of funds appropriated by Congress for combating foot and mouth disease in California.

FAIR WEATHER WIVES

CHAPTER 2.

PRINCE CHARMING—FROM WALL STREET.

IN the upstairs hall, Marjorie met her sister Julie, who clutched her arm sharply. "What is Reed Hollister doing here, do you know? I saw him drive up with Dad a minute ago."

Marjorie laughed. "How should I know? Do you think Dad lets me in on his business secrets?"

Julie looked at her speculatively. "Of course YOU wouldn't know," there was subtle emphasis on the pronoun. "I'm a bit worried."

"Why?" demanded Marjorie amusedly. "Isn't Mr. Hollister the sort of person Dad ought to know?"

Julie, not too discerning of sarcasm, stared. "My word, there isn't anybody in New York who wouldn't give his eye teeth to claim Reed Hollister as an acquaintance. But... see here, you're only a kid and yet you couldn't help noticing some things... is anything wrong with Dad?"

Marjorie raised surprised brows. "You're honest, at all events."

"I haven't learned yet not to be," Marjorie retorted with unconscious irony. "He swept her with appreciative eyes."

"Then please never learn. You're charming as you are. It would be unforgivable to have you spoiled."

She drew back a trifle, resenting the personal turn the conversation had taken. Again she felt the little premonitory ripple of fear and dislike which had stirred her at her meeting with Hollister.

It was unaccountable. She had known few men, it was true. Her masculine acquaintance was mostly composed of nice prep school boys who had been imported for boarding school dances, a neighborhood youth or two who played tennis with her, and a handful of college chums of Dan's who came home for holidays and invariably fell violently in love with her for a day or so until her cool amusement dampened their headlong infatuation.

Of grown men, older men of Hollister's age, which was around 35 perhaps, she knew nothing. She had had no love affairs.

Hollister, watching her intently, noted the shrinking, said quickly: "I beg your pardon. Do I offend you? ... I'll make a confession," again his disarming smile flashed out. "I know very little about girls, how to talk to them, or what pleases them. I never had a sister and I've been too busy for sweethearts... I wonder if you'll understand?"

"Oh, yes," she nodded gravely. "I don't know anything about men either... I must go now," she added with a dignity which sat charmingly on her youth.

She left him with a nod. He stood looking after her, a quizzical expression in his fine eyes.

He knew that Fate, which had stalked him vainly during the impressionable period of his thirty-five years, was touching him on the shoulder, with a whimsical smile.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Tip to the Carver.

Joists of duck will be found much farther toward the back of the fowl than those of chicken or turkey.

Making Sweet Milk Sour.

If a recipe calls for sour milk and you have none, put a little vinegar in fresh milk and it will cause it to curd and answer the same purpose.

Removes Tarnish.

Tarnished gilt braid will look like new if a little alum is rubbed into it. Rub rather vigorously and leave it for a few hours. When brushed off the braid will shine as of yore.

Doughnut Cooking.

The temperature of the fat should remain the same when cooking doughnuts. If the fat is too hot the doughnuts will brown before they are really cooked. If too cold, the doughnuts are likely to absorb some of the fat and be soggy.

To Clean Marble.

If you wish to rejuvenate that old marble mantelpiece, try this: Dissolve 1 ounce of soda in 1-4 pint of water and add whiting until it is the consistency of a paste. Rub well into the marble and let dry. Wash off with clear water.

Veal croquettes, caper sauce; brown potatoes, asparagus, tomato salad and blackberry pie.

What to Serve Tomorrow

Breakfast.

Grapefruit.
Cereal.
Creamed chipped beef on toast.
Coffee, cocoa, milk.

Luncheon.

Baked ham sandwich.
Snow souffle.
Nut cookies.
Coffee, tea, milk.

Dinner.

Beef croquettes, brown sauce.
Mashed potatoes.
Beets.
Fruit salad.

Pineapple mousse.
Coffee, tea, milk.

SNOW SOUFFLE.

Put two tablespoonfuls shortening and four tablespoonfuls potato flour in pan, stir well together; add one-half cupful milk, pinch salt and stir until boiling. Remove from fire, add four tablespoonfuls sugar, yolks of three eggs, one at a time, one-half teaspoonful orange flower water, and fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Pour into greased souffle mold, put greased paper around. Bake for 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serve at once.

BEF CROQUETTES.

Melt two tablespoonfuls shortening, stir in one tablespoonful flour, gradually add one-half pint milk, stir till it boils four minutes, add salt and pepper to taste; one-half pound cold cooked chopped beef and four tablespoonfuls bread crumbs. Turn out on plate to cool. Divide into eight pieces, flour them and make into neat croquettes. Egg and bread-crumbs them and fry till brown in hot fat. Drain and serve hot with brown sauce.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

First Lessons

In play are many lessons taught.
And wisdom for the future wrought.

THESE were anxious days for Mrs. Happy Jack Squirrel. She worried from the time she opened her eyes in the morning until she closed them at night. Four frisky children are enough to worry any mother. Don't you think so? It was simply impossible to keep those four little Happy Jacks inside the house. She would leave them in there to go to hunt for food, but the moment her back was turned out they would come. So she did her best to teach them as fast as she could the things it was necessary for them to know.

They didn't have to be taught to dig their little claws into the bark. They did this as naturally as they breathed. Of course, at first they remained very close to the entrance, so that they might scamper in every time they were frightened. This was very often. You see, everything was so new and strange that they didn't know what things to be afraid of. So, often they were frightened when there was no cause for fright. One would become frightened at something and scramble for the safety of the house. The others would scramble after him, not knowing what had frightened him. But it wouldn't take them long to get over their fright, and they would be out again.

Mrs. Happy Jack didn't leave them alone any longer than was necessary. You see, every minute she was away from them she worried for fear something would happen to them. When she was with them she taught them in their play. They didn't know they were being taught, but they were. In playing tag they learned how to dodge around the trunk of the tree. When they tried to catch their mother, somehow she always managed to keep the tree between her and them. "No one can catch you if you keep the trunk of a tree between you and the one trying to catch you," she explained. And they soon found that this was so. After that when they were playing by themselves they would chase each other around and around the trunk of the tree.

Sometimes one would get on one side of the tree and one on the other side of the tree, and the first one would try to catch the

MEDITATIONS OF A MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE CURE FOR "FLAPPERITIS."

PUT the flapper to work!

All this preaching merely bores—and flatters—her; but WORK will soon take the world-weary look out of her eyes, and put a light of enthusiasm into them, that no blue-pencil can dim.

A girl who has to think up selling-talks all day has no time or energy to think up new slang and new ways to startle Mother in the evening.

A girl who gets up at 7 a. m., six mornings a week, will soon find that she can't stay up until 3 at jazz parties, petting-parties and flask parties, and make the grade.

A girl, who is busy from 9 to 5, has no time to squander Dad's money in the shops or to hang around hotel lobbies and tea-dances all afternoon.

A girl who loves her work has something in life to live for, besides keeping her nose powdered, her "dates" straight and her dance-steps up to the minute.

A girl who is accomplishing something, DOING something, making something of herself, has far too much appreciation of her own valuation, to permit herself to be carelessly mauled and kissed by every goistical half-baked young "sheik" who treats her to a chocolate eclairs and a cup of tea.

A girl with a few serious thoughts and responsibilities INSIDE her head, won't spend so many hours and dollars on the bob or the permanent wave on the OUTSIDE.

A girl who has learned how to earn a dollar will "have a heart" about keeping any man's nose to the grindstone, so that she may fritter away his hard-earned shekels on fads and chiffons and taxicabs.

A girl with an OBJECTIVE in life will grow a few IDEALS! And these are the radius of the spirit, the guiding stars of the soul, the only real thrill and "kick" to life, after all!

Best of all, a girl who WORKS is thrown among real men, and meets something besides jazzboys, and lounge liards, and mama's darlings, on which to practice her charms and allurements.

A girl who works has the first and best chance to MARRY.

And there's nothing like the good old steam-roller of matrimony to grade the flapper down to a nice regulation, womanly woman.

Work—blessed work!—is the magic cure for everything from indigestion to this infantile paralysis of the soul, "flapperitis."

I have never yet met a girl who worked at anything WORTH-WHILE, who also worked at being a flapper.

It can't be done!

Three Exquisite Frocks for the Summer

Mary Wallcott & Sonenmyer

THERE may have been some doubt about it before but now Summer is really here. There is nothing as cool looking in hot weather as fresh clothes. It is hard to have this fresh, cool appearance if we have only a limited number of frocks. The warm weather witts the daintiest material as well as it does our spirits. So in order to keep our clothes looking immaculate and to help our willing spirits let us have enough summer dresses to keep us looking as crisp as the flowers in the garden. They need not be elaborate or expensive but just fresh.

The girl on the left wears a frock of voile in any dainty color you please, salmon other one. The other one would dodge back and fourth, so as to keep the tree between them. Mrs. Happy Jack would nod her head in approval. "You'll find that a very useful trick one of these days," said she.

One day she discovered one of them teasing his sister by pulling her tail. She put a stop to that right away. "You must leave each other's tails alone," she declared. "A good tail is very important to a Squirrel. Whatever you do, take care of your tails. A good tail may save your life some time."

"I don't see what good a tail is, excepting for looks," whispered one little Squirrel to another.

His mother overheard him. "Watch me," said she sharply. She ran out along a branch and made a long leap from that branch to a branch of another tree. Then she jumped back again. "Without that big tail of mine I couldn't have made that long jump," said she.

THERE is no single piece of furniture that takes on the personality of its owner as completely as a desk. The way articles are placed on it, the pictures and books on its shelf, the color of its blotter, the position of the chair in front of it—all seem to unmistakably express individually. We are not inclined to sit down before the desk without an invitation from its owner lest we intrude her privacy.

The shops cater to the desk-lover and there are many new and charming things to be gotten for its embellishment and convenience. Many women, not caring to spend much money on an elaborate desk-set, buy necessities like an ink-well, paste-pot, pen-tray, stamp-box, blotter and calendar, frame them, cover the desk-blotted pad and decorate all the articles to suit their own fancy.

These odd articles, which are easy to find, for some expert can be industriously in the big stores. The fad for bookshelves is very attractive and the Chinese sets are in ivory and lacquer. ## HOW BIG IS A BATHING SUIT?

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

I AND George, that's my husband, was down to spend the week end of the week with Joe Bush of the Hawthorne Club and his wife at the Beach, and not bozo! I only wish you could see the bathing suits.

Wish you could see them is the way I felt on account some of them was hardly visible and needed a magnifying glass before a person could be positive was they there or not.

Actually, I didn't know which way to look, and Mrs. Joe Bush, she didn't either, so whenever a beach vamp in a mere promise of a bathing suit would stroll by, why Mrs. B. and me would look at each other the way only good women can, if you get me. And we would say it ought to be stopped, don't you think so, George, and George would come back with, er—hey, what? Excuse me, my mind was on something else, or some other dumb remark.

And him and that Joe Bush looking right at her the whole time!

And Adam said— Well, anyways, Mrs. Joe Bush had been appointed on a committee to put the peace in one-piece bathing suits, and she was on the beach this day giving her opinions a little exercise, and this got me to wondering what thoughts I had on the bathing suit question, if any.

Well, I suppose this question has come up pretty near every summer since the time Eve got all dolled up in a one-piece fig leaf and Adam said hey for the love of tripe you ain't going in swimming like that are you, not with all them parlor snakes and beach lizards hanging around watching.

And Eve give him the glassy eye and says, this is the very latest thing, I am the only woman in the world and if I don't know what's being worn this season, I'd like to know who does? And probably Adam had to give in with some grumbling remark to the effect that women are all alike, confound 'em. Yard vs. Square Inch.

Anyway, I seem to remember, pretty good, when we ladies went bathing with a corset on. And what with the weight of a old style, whale-boned corset added to the sink or swim costume, it's a wonder the buds in our set wasn't all drowned at the first of the season.

That was in the days when all the alpaca which now goes into office coats used to go into ladies' and misses' six-piece bathing suits, and swimming costumes were sold by the yard instead of by the square inch, like in modern times.

Well, on the beach nowadays, when I look at some of the custom-ers, I get all in favor of the good old-fashioned custom of wearing a corset into the water. Some of my friends, well, they do come out in the strangest places, and I on'y make the suggestion for their own good and for the good of the gen-eral, which, after all, is entitled to some consideration.

The Well-Dressed Bathing Boy. And this goes for the men, as well. I can't remember where I have heard a great deal said about the way the men look on the beach. The subject of what the well-dressed Bathing Boy will wear has been neglected entirely too long.

Every time I see a man with a stomach than hair standing around openly on a beach without, appar-ently, the slightest idea there is anything wrong about him, but quite to the other hand, with an air of I am the whole cheese, why I pretty near burst laughing to think anyone ever dared to pass any remarks about the girls after passing up a thing like him.

The "why" of that second look

"Men don't look back at me the second time. It hurts more than I like to say. For they look twice at lots of other girls, and I dress as well as they do. It's my hair, I think. It never has had any luster. Just dull and flat. How can I make it attractive?"
—Despondent.

To make your hair the compelling note in your appeal, use a shampoo that contains a touch of beauty. Properly prepared the "touch of beauty" shampoo will bring out all the wealth of sheen and luster that makes hair beautiful. Be it blonde, brown or brunette.

In fact, when it comes to censoring bathing suits, I got the idea where it would be a good thing to make all the homely people dress fully. Barrels worn over the suit would be a great improvement on many. And these little French wagons of canvas that roll down into the water would make a fine and thoroughly suitable costume for a lot of the ladies I am acquainted with.

Two of these big beach umbrellas, one worn on either side, would improve the appearance of most bathers, but, of course, there are others who really need a private beach—nothing else will save the public from a shock. Believe you me, if you want to know the truth about a good prospect in the matrimonial line, and you meet them in the water, stall them off until the good old summer time, and learn the worst out at the beach.

I tell you, girls, many a boy who is a Valentino in a dress suit is all too truly himself in a bathing suit. And many a girl with a pretty face is more like a old-fashioned square piano than like anything human, once she is headed for the water.

So that fixes up the homely bath-ers, whether fat, or thin, or either, in the wrong place. And when it comes to what the swell looking ones can wear, well, I would suggest that in their case they be allowed to wear whatever type of open-faced suit they crave to, and the beach managers furnish a pair of old-fashioned horse blinders at the entrance gate with every ticket. Then the old saying about there are none so blind as the ones who won't see will be a purely optional motto. By this arrangement the more conservative bunch can read and sew and gossip and otherwise enjoy the beach without being of-fended by undue legs, arms, etc.

When Frankness is Wrong. What with practically all the horse power of the country now working in automobiles instead of livery stables, it had ought to be easy for the managers of the big beaches to pick up a lot of horse blinders real cheap. And many a wife and daughter would be easier in their mind and morning dip if aware that Pa was wearing a pair of them blinders to take care of his horse-sensitiveness.

Quite to the other hand, it might be that the more radical cus-tomers at the beaches would pre-fer free opera glasses. They have, for years, been using same at the Follies, where the show girls say it with frankness—a frankness that some consider is immediately all wrong when it appears on a bath-ing beach.

But these opera glass fans can't seem to see any reason why, if legs is admitted on the stage and in the advertising pages of magazines, they should not be allowed on the beaches, in which place they are practically a necessity, especially if the wearer desires to swim.

The Moral of It All. Now get me right. I personally myself am not in favor of either the Blinders Bunch or the Opera Glass Crowd. I am in favor of the right of everybody to the pursuit of life, liberty and the choice of swimming suits. The fact that I wear a two-piece one composed mainly of black silk ruffles don't prevent me from admiring girls that have got the figures to wear the other type.

I can't help but feel that the more brief and simple bathing suits is, the better for the health and native modesty they are. When I was in the broiler class, ladies

Remove hair this quick way!

New Cream, perfected in Laboratory, solves old problem, pleasantly and permanently.

Unightly hair growths, that mar beauty and dispel daintiness now become a thing of the past. They are no longer necessary. For Science has at last found a quick, pleasant way to remove unwanted hair.

This new method consists of a Cream—cool, smooth, harm-less and as easy to use as powdering your nose. Applied like ordinary cold cream, it quickly dissolves the hair. Then merely rinse it away with plain water. The skin is left re-freshed, free from odor and as smooth as satin.

Pryde is the name of this new cream. You will be de-lighted with it. It is so easy to use. And so quick. No mixing or mashing; and nothing to melt. It comes ready for use, in large sealed tubes. And the price is only—50c.

Obtain Pryde from your nearest Druggist, or favorite toilet goods counter anywhere.

merely bathed. Now they swim. And comparative bathing suits will explain it all.

Of course, in any day, night, or age or on any beach, some few folks will behave in an improper way. They, of either sex, will put in a appearance that is vulgar and act in a ditto manner. But the chances is that this class won't confine their bad behavior to the beach; they will be as bad in the office and at home.

And on account of them, I sup-pose we got to have a bathing suit censorship. But, like a whole lot of other things in life, if you con-sider the matter real careful, you will find out it is not the bath-ing suits that is immodest, but the one who are wearing them.

For evening wear, a few Paris women are using the veritable Spanish comb—very high and wide—over which they drape the grace-ful Spanish mantilla. Even when the actual mantilla is not em-ployed, this motif bids fair to domi-nate the evening head dress.

While the argue for alligator and snake skin—often brilliantly dyed—is at its height in Paris, here come silver and gold leathers. The latter are reported to be chiefly for facings.

Saves Time

Your time is worth saving; because, in housekeeping, time is used for work; and saving time saves work. Old Dutch is composed of fine flat-shaped particles that erase dirt, instead of scratching it off. It leaves the surface clean hygieni-cally; it's a sanitary operation; it doesn't scratch the surface nor injure your hands. Old Dutch means true cleaning economy. Its fine particles cover more surface; they go farther and perform more actual cleaning. There's nothing else like Old Dutch, and millions of housewives know this.
